Follow Einstein, If Possible.
A Fable Comes True.
Children Need Candy.
Russia Buys Sugar.

— By ARTHUR BRISBANE —

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN TELLS the universe how it is made and scientists ask, "Is his stuff too deep for us, or is he just answering opinions in fairy story fashion, as his ancestors did, when they wrote the Book of Genesis, some time ago, and explained everything easily, packing it all into one week?"

EINSTEIN GETS RID of the ether—he does not need it in his universe. But he does not answer Newton's question, how can separate bodies of matter draw each other with no element connecting them? In plainer words, how could you lead a cow unless you had a rope fastened to her? The ether is Newton's rope, hypothetical, that attaches one body in space to another, making gravitation possible.

PROF. EINSTEIN says men thought of matter first, earth, horses, rocks, themselves, and only later began to think about space, in which they, and matter, exist.

You know, from the learned Jeans, that all matter in the universe, compared with the space in which it floats, is like one grain of dust, floating around in a big railroad station.

NOW, SAYS EINSTEIN, space has become the important thing, and matter is secondary. Matter once seemed to be filling up space, eating it up, as it were. Now space has turned and is eating up matter. Make something substantial out of that, and you will think like Einstein.

THAT DEEP ONE is working on equations that, he hopes, will prove the cosmos, which means everything there is, is all one. Electro-magnetic phenomena, gravitation and geometry are all the same.

A MICROBE, studying a big building, might discover that roof, foundation, electric wiring, furnaces, soil pipes, elevators, telephones are all one, all having come from some corner of the architect's brain.

Einstein may reach the conclusion that somewhere, there is a cosmic architect, and that all comes from one corner of his brain.

That would be embarrassing for a scientist, in whose universe of equations no Aristotelian "prime mover" is necessary.

HOWEVER, EINSTEIN is a great mathematician and sincere scientist, with the modesty that accompanies greatness. You owe it to yourself to follow him and understand him, if you can.

FABLES COME TRUE. The frogs, like the Rumanians, thought they needed a king. Kind Jupiter sent a heavy log to rule them.

King Log settled down in the pond, troubled nobody. The frogs lost respect when they found they could sit on their log-king and croak. They wanted a more energetic king. Jupiter sent one that ate them up.

RUMANIA HAD a little boy king, harmless, managed by his harmless grandmother. But that seemed dull.

So Rumania sent for Prince Carol to come, rule and "show some speed."

He has done it, as when he ran away from the mother of little Michael, his son, and traveled about with another lady. All that is forgiven now, for kings, after all, must have some rights.

STALIN, ACROSS THE LINE in Russia, watches the performance with interest, you may be sure. He feels that Rumania's wheat fields, oil wells and fruit orchards should be Russia's.

They probably will belong to Russia when Stalin gets around to it.

EXPERIMENTS AT COLGATE University prove that eating sugar relieves fatigue that follows loss of sleep. Dr. Laird's scientific tests prove "it is possible to stay awake longer, with far less harmful after effects, when highly concentrated energy foods, such as cakes, candy or sweetened drinks, are consumed at intervals during the night."

CANDY IN REASONABLE quantities, simply made, especially the kind kept in the mouth for a long time, is good for children. Good plain candy should be part of every child's diet. To say "candy ruins the teeth" is nonsense.

Normal acids, orange and lemon juices, especially, are necessary for children.

Often children of the poor are healthier than those of the rich. A poor child, guided by its actual needs, selects at will from the family diet. The rich child, controlled by a nurse or governess, often is forced to eat what it should not eat.

It has no choice, and food soon becomes monotonous. Find a child that is generally without appetite and you find a child badly fed.

RUSSIA BUYS FROM CUBA 135,000 tons of sugar, at less than one cent and a half a pound.

For this sugar Russia pays three-quarters in cash, the balance in notes. And Russia

MRS. RUTH SWITZER, 21

MAID, IN TEARS, ADMITS THEFT

"I feel there is nothing else left in the world for me—you are all against me."

This was the tearful plea of Mrs. Ruth Switzer, 21-year-old mother, at a hearing in Morals Court today, where she was accused of taking a $2,000 diamond ring and other valuables from the home of Samuel Weckosky, 5621 Callowhill street, where she is employed as a maid.

Mrs. Switzer admitted taking the rung, which was recovered only after City Detectives Robert Best and Murray Edlis dug it from under the Weckosky home. It had slipped under a three-foot pillar of concrete which the sleuths removed in their search.

A fur piece worth $200, a $25 watch and a $50 dress were recovered in the accused woman's North Side room, the detectives reported.

Mrs. Switzer told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Morals Court that her child is with an aunt in Portersville, Butler County, and she is separated from her husband.

Rothenberg turned Mrs. Switzer over to social service workers, while she is held on a suspicious person charge.

Mrs. Switzer had swallowed bichloride of mercury tablets at Woodlawn avenue and Forbes street several months ago. She recovered in Allegheny General Hospital. She was despondent, she said, over her inability to find a job.

FAZIO HOLDS REAL KILLER IS HIDING

Attorney for Man Accused In Barrel Murder Says Slayer Fled Into Ohio

BULLETIN.

Philip Fazio, defendant in the barrel murder trial, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Criminal Court today after a jury of six men and six women had been completed.

While a jury was being chosen to hear Philip Fazio, of Clairton, accused in the killing of William J. Gregory, the barrel murder victim, his counsel in a corridor-statement denied his guilt.

"The Fazio case never will go to the jury," said William H. Coleman, attorney. "The slayer of Gregory fled from the Pittsburgh district after the killing, and is hiding in Ohio. When this case is over, we (Coleman and Attorney Frank Zappala) intend to assist the district attorney's office in bringing the real murderer back for trial."

Gregory's headless body was found in a barrel April 1 in Penn Township.

TEN JURORS CHOSEN

Ten jurors, six of them women, had been chosen this afternoon.

They were Samuel T. Street, labor foreman, 420 Russellwood avenue, McKees Rocks; Mrs. Esther Jahn, 200 East Littlewood street, Etna; Mrs. Catherine Halleran, 124 Elm street, Edgewood; Mrs. Barbara Raum, 210 Butler street, and Mrs. Rose Grauert, 359 South Ninetieth street; Harold R. 'DOUBLE-CROSS' MOTIVE

The motive in the case, as detectives allege, is that Gregory worked as a beer runner for Fazio and other members of a beer syndicate and that he had taken for his own use a truck load of beer.

CLERGY SIFT DOG RACE 'BETTING'

Ministers Launch Inquiry To Determine Legality of 'Investment' Plans Here

Alleged betting at dog races in Bridgeville and New Kensington was ordered investigated by the Pittsburgh Ministerial Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church today at its weekly meeting.

Charges that conditions at both tracks were detrimental to young people were made by the Rev. H. N. Pringle, of the National Reform Bureau, Washington.

"GIRLS, 16, ADMITTED"

Not alone are girls as young as 16 years permitted to place bets under the alleged subterfuge of contributing to purses awarded to race winners, but they openly smoke in the grandstands.

No effort is made, according to Mr. Pringle, to enforce the ruling at both tracks against placing of money by minors.

The ministerial group appointed a committee of three members to investigate conditions and make recommendations if violations of the law are found.

NO COMPLAINTS FILED

The members are the Rev. G. L. Powell, the Rev. B. A. Parkins, of Bridgeville, and the Rev. H. A. Boam, New Kensington.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today declared no complaints had been filed with his office.

SON RETURNS TO HER AS AUGURY

Joint Coronation, Next October, Predicted as Both Consider State's Interests

BUCHAREST, June 9.—(AP.)—An early reconciliation between the newly installed King Carol II of Rumania and his former wife, Princess Helen, was forecast today in official circles when Carol returned their son, Michael, to his mother.

Joint coronation in October of Carol and Helen was predicted.

In official circles it was pointed out that, with the first interests of the country in mind, and strengthened by the intimate needs of their son for a father and mother in the same domicile, Carol and his former wife undoubtely would adjust their viewpoints to the situation.

LONGED FOR HIS MOTHER

The little former king, just like any plebian child, grew lonesome today for his mamma, after spending the night with his royal daddy at the Cotroceni palace.

Carol, although installed as king a few hours before, found himself the abject subject of his little son, from whom he had been separated so long. During the last few years Michael's father had been just a name to him. He was a handsome man who had gone away and was somewhere at sea, on a voyage that for some reason or another never seemed to end.

King Carol, on going to his son this forenoon, quickly perceived that the young man who, since Ferdinand's death, had been regarded as monarch was still just a very small boy and so he took him forthwith to the Princess Helen.

OTHER RELATIVES PRESENT

Carol had a long conversation with his former wife. The former Queen Elizabeth of Greece and Prince Nicolas, sister and brother of Carol, were present.

The general impression prevailed in official circles today that a reconciliation soon would be effected.

Whether Helen's decision would be based on the needs of their child for a domicile with both his

Pajama Party Raided, 2 Women, 2 Men Held

Two men and two women, arrested, according to the police, while attending a "pajama party" in an office at 429 Fourth avenue early Sunday morning, were held for further investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Morals Court today.

They were docketed as Helen Hays, 20, of the Seventh Avenue Hotel; Helen Reeves, 18, of 1200 Church street, McKees Rocks; H. G. Schilling, 32, of 429 Fourth avenue, and Stephen Porter, 23, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Police raided Schilling's office on complaint of William Brown, 903 Fifth avenue, that a girl attired in pajamas threw a bucket through the window of an automobile parked in Fourth avenue.

Police testified they found five quarts of gin at the party, and that all of the defendants were attired in pajamas.

U. S. PROBES FAKE SOS THAT CUT OFF REED RADIO TALK

HOAX HALTS ATTACK ON 'AIR TRUST'

Federal Commissions Open Inquiry Into Interruption Of Missourian's Address

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Inter... of a speech by James A. Reed, ... which he at... the "radio monopoly," by an SOS call, was under investigation by the Federal Radio Commission today.

Strong suspicion existed that the call was a fake in order to silence Reed's address. A radio station in New York and a Coast Guard vessel reported hearing the SOS.

DEPLORES FAKE CALLS

Maj. Gen. Charles McKay Saltzman, chairman of the Radio Commission, said broadcasting stations have co-operated 100 per cent in immediately going off the air when SOS calls were reported but that the commission deplored their being silenced by fake calls.

While it is comparatively simple to trace a transmitting station while it is "sending" it was anticipated that considerable difficulty would be experienced in identifying the station which sent out the SOS call Saturday night.

Radio inspectors from the Commerce Department as well as commission experts joined in the investigation.

COUZENS FOR INQUIRY

Senator Dill (Dem.), Washington, an authority on radio in Congress, said that the matter appeared "peculiar," and Senator Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, declared it warranted investigation.

The interruption to the Missourian's speech oddly enough came at the time when he was launching into a bitter attack of the "radio trust."

Senator Reed's speech was then being received with great clarity over the Columbia Broadcasting Company hook-up. The speech was interrupted for 25 minutes. During that period Senator Reed's most severe utterances were being delivered.

Anti-Catholic disorders broke out here yesterday when supporters of Lord Strickland jeered the Catholic archbishop of Malta at the tremination of Whitsunday services in the Cathedral of St. John.

Mounted police finally broke up the crowd and brought the archbishop from the building under escort.

GANGSTER SHOT DEAD IN NEW CHICAGO WAR

St. Valentine's Day Massacre Gun Seller Wounded; Girl's Body Will Go to Mother

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 9.—The warfare that has wracked Chicago's rival gangs for the past week flared out anew today with the slaying of a racketeer and the mysterious shooting of Frank Thompson, once accused as the distributor of machine guns used in the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven Moran gangsters.

Imagination Lands Man Before Police Judge

William McDonald, 25, of Woodward street, has a great imagination, police say. Being chased by an angry man who was armed with a shotgun, McDonald believed himself in great danger. Turned Out, Romance Ends For Ex-Follies Beauty

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 9.—(INS.)—Her romance with Charles T. Davis, millionaire Dannemora prison ex-convict, ended when he told her to get out of his palatial Tujunga home, was the version today of Miss Cano Morris, former Follies beauty, in discussing her $200,000 breach of promise suit against Davis.

Denying that she had left Davis' home without reason, Miss Morris said:

"I left, not because I decided to, but because Charlie Davis told me to get out!

"I met him after a show party in Cleveland.

"He went West, sent me money and I came out. He was wonderful to me at first, bought me clothes, a $500 jade necklace—everything.

"One day he asked me to give him back all the endearing letters and telegrams and all the money order receipts he had sent me. I did. He even asked for the necklace. I was suspicious. Then he told me for the first time he was not divorced."

In her suit Miss Morris charged Davis had induced her to come here to pose as his wife.

Mrs. Davis now is in Reno, Nev., for the admitted purpose of divorcing Davis.

Old Barroom Play Goes Broke in Catskill

CATSKILL, N. Y., June 9.—(AP.)—High and dry in the Catskills, wondering where to go and how, today were the troupers of C. R. Reno's "Ten Nights in a Barroom" company, stranded after playing to empty seats in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

There seemed to be precious few among the residents of Catskill and environs who thought it worth 50 cents to see Jim Morgan put on his 10 nightly sprees in Slade's saloon or hear Flossie Tucker, in the role of Morgan's little girl, sing:

"Oh father, dear father, come home with me now.

"The clock in the steeple strikes one."

Sons With Derby Fortune At Work as 'Pa' Retires

NEW YORK, June 9.—(INS.)—All was outwardly serene today with the Dougherty, of Brooklyn, who rode to riches on a $1 lottery ticket on the Epsom Downs Derby.

"Pa" Dougherty has "piped down" and is no longer claiming the money—nor any part of the $149,000.

His two sons, Danny, Jr., and Eddie, have "split" the winnings and, apparently, it's "jake" with "Pa."

Eddie got $71,813.83.

Dannie got $71,813.83.

"Pa" got nothing.

"Pa" resignedly said:

"Oh, well, the check was drafted to the boys and I let it go at that.

"Anyhow the boys have promised to take care of me."

"Pa" didn't go to work today. He is a hotel doorman. Pulling on a fat cigar he explained:

"I ain't been feeling so well. I think I need a good rest."

But Eddie and Dannie, brokerage clerks, went back to work. Dannie is planning to get married. Both boys intend to invest their money through their firm.

13 HURLED TO DEATH, 7 INJURED IN TUNNEL EXPLOSIONS

SMOKY'S IN TOWN!

MR. AND MRS. (BRIDE) EUGENE S. "SMOKY" RHOADS

"Smoky," Patterson (N. Y.) pilot who landed in Pittsburgh with the Pennsylvania air tourists, bringing his bride of a few months with him. He's a Somerset (Pa.) man and was one of the crew of the NC4, U. S. Navy plane that flew the Atlantic years ago.

AIRMAN'S WIFE HAS HER WOES

When "Smoky" Rhoads comes to town it's a holiday in Somerset, Pa.

When Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Rhoad's, of Paterson, N. J., flew into Pittsburgh Saturday, they were just two members of the Pennsylvania Good Will Air Tour.

But this Mr. Rhoads, who also enjoys the distinctive, albeit, derisive appellation of "Smoky," is one of the outstanding heroes of aviation, having flown across the Atlantic in the NC4 long before Lindbergh, Byrd, Earhart or any of the others ever thought of it. For this he wears his country's Congressional medal.

But Mrs. Rhoads cares not a whit about all this.

Only a bride of a few months, she expresses herself concerning all these honors and heroism collectively and individually in one word:

"Bosh."

Then she added:

"Being married to an aviator is just like marrying a sailor—or even a newspaperman—You never know where they are or when they're coming home."

Mrs. Rhoads caught up with her husband Saturday at Johnstown, making the trip over from New Jersey by rail to spend a few days with him.

Smoky said:

"I'll give her the air going back. She's flying back with me."

Friends declare Letzig, 23, was engaged to marry Alice Ford Bauer, of Louisville, Ky. Hall is survived by his mother, listed as Mrs. Bertha Lane, of 125 West Reynolds street, Springfield, Ill.

Claim of $100,000 Estate Futile; Jailed

PORTLAND, Ore., June 9.—(AP.)—Louis Swanck, 50, Tacoma sea captain and janitor, was in jail here today with the knowledge that the tale of a $100,000 estate cannot be offered successfully in lieu of a $500 bond. So his trip to Hamburg to claim his self-proclaimed bequest is temporarily halted while Mrs. Swanck considers the advisability of dismissing charges of non-support. Swanck was arrested when the ship on which he is working his way to Hamburg reached Portland yesterday.

'NAVAL TREATY BETRAYS U.S.' —JOHNSON

Californian Pushes Fight To Block Ratification; War on Hoover's Secrecy

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(U.S.)—Denouncing the London naval treaty is a betrayal and a surrender of America's historic naval policy, Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), California, leader of the anti-treaty fight, today declared:

"Great Britain builds as she prefers; the United States builds as Great Britain permits."

DEMANDS GRANTED

Senator Johnson pointed out that Great Britain went into the London conference with a demand for 339,000 tons of cruisers, the majority to be of the 6-inch-gun type suitable to her needs. She came out without sacrificing a ton of her original demand.

When the Senate Foreign Relations Committee meets today in executive session to start drafting a report, Senator Johnson and the treaty foes will renew their fight to obtain the secret documents denied by President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson.

FIGHT FOR DELAY

Meanwhile the movement to delay consideration of the treaty until the next regular session was gathering force. Senators in favor of such action are circulating a round robin. It was learned, petitioning President Hoover to abandon his plan for calling a special session of the Senate immediately after adjournment of the present session, to act upon the treaty.

More than 20 signatures so far have been attached to the petition, and more are expected.

NEW HOSPITAL STONE LAID

The man who gave almost a million sat beside a woman who gave but a mite at the laying of the cornerstone of the new $7,000,000 Allegheny General Hospital yesterday afternoon.

Thousands came. Prominent doctors, mothers who have taken their children to the clinics, former patients of all ages, the first interne at the original hospital, and the youngest probationer in the nursing school were there.

Members of the Park and Chalfant families, whose ancestral homes were dismantled to make possible the new Allegheny General Hospital with its choice site, were present.

William Watson Smith, the speaker of the day, emphasized the progress of humanity as registered in the history of hospitals.

"We are about to lay the cornerstone of a building which marks a great forward step in Pittsburgh philanthropy. The building will have 600 beds, and will be equipped with all modern devices and improvements, so 10,000 patients can be cared for each year."

"In the future years as in the past the Allegheny General Hospital will do its full part."

The Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, president of the board of directors of the hospital, was chairman of the exercises. The Rev. Dr. John McNaugher, president of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, offered the invocation, and Henry Lee Mason, Jr., chairman of the executive committee of the hospital, officiated at the laying of the cornerstone.

Four of the laborers were killed instantly. The two others died shortly after in Receiving hospital.

Fifteen men in the tunnel were rescued. The six injured suffered cuts, bruises and shock.

ESCAPERS GIVE ALARM

A number of men are said to have been in an adjoining tunnel which was shut off by tons of rock and sand brought down by the explosion.

THREE DEAD IDENTIFIED

Three of the dead have been identified. They are Pias Tollison, C. Zulaski and A. Massey.

An earlier report that 21 men were still trapped in the tunnel proved unfounded.

Crafton Holds Connelley Property Nuisance

Property in Fountain avenue, Crafton, said to be owned by Pittsburgh Councilman Clifford B. Connelley, has been adjudged detrimental to the community's civic progress and the borough council at a meeting last week instructed Solicitor Robert S. Chess to institute proceedings to have it declared a public nuisance.

A house on the land was seriously damaged by fire several years ago, according to Borough Clerk J. O. Schreiber, and since that time has been untenanted.

Owls and bats are said to have taken refuge in the building. At times it was the abode of tramps and in summer it is the scene of petting parties. Complaints reached Council and the solicitor was ordered to take legal steps against the owner.

Sanders's safety belt apparently broke and he was hurled through the air, falling to his death before a crowd of more than 1,000 people.

G. O. P. LEADERS FEAR FORT

TRENTON, N. J., June 9.—(INS.)—"It's anybody's fight at the present moment. Fort is rapidly becoming a dangerous contender for the Republican senatorial nomination."

With the New Jersey primary elections but 10 days off this was the summary of the situation relating to the tri-cornered senatorial fight as expressed by one of the outstanding Republican leaders. It was more in the form of an admission as this leader is not a backer of Franklin W. Fort, the standard bearer of the dry elements in the Republican party.

With both Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and former Senator Frelinghuysen running on liberal platforms, the drys figure that the adherents of the Eighteenth Amendment will concentrate on Fort, despite claims of Morrow backers that his forthright statement for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment has won for him many dry votes.

CLIPPINGS MAY IDENTIFY BABY

Police today were searching for a middle-aged woman, tall and thin, believed to hold the key to the mystery surrounding the abandoning of a two-weeks' old child, found in a barrel in Candy alley, downtown.

The woman last Friday entered the Diamond Hardware Manufacturing Company, 224 Fourth avenue, and asked to permission to leave two paper bags until she returned.

She failed to return and J. R. Devlin, company official, opened the bags today and found they contained many newspaper clippings telling of the abandoned child and also a receipt showing she had been a patient in Mercy Hospital. Police concluded from this evidence that she is the mother of the child.

The infant is being cared for at Rosalia Foundling Asylum.

NARCOTIC BILL READY FOR HOOVER

Measure Creating Bureau To Cope With Dope Awaits Signature of President

By WINIFRED BLACK.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Good news from Washington.

We are going to have a real bureau of narcotics in the Treasury Department, at last.

The bill creating such a bureau passed the House some time ago and last week the Senate passed the bill. All now that is lacking to put the measure into good smart practical action is the signature of President Hoover.

The President has already expressed himself as strongly in favor of the measure, so there is very little to worry about as far as the new bureau is concerned.

Huge amounts of deadly poison came into this country and was distributed with neatness and dispatch, and the Narcotic Bureau seemed to be helpless.

FINES ALWAYS REDUCED

Ships bringing in a million dollars' worth of dope were sometimes caught in the act—the ship was fined—but somehow, when it came to the payment of the fine, something interesting always happened, and the ship's owners and the company running the ship paid two or three hundred dollars and everybody was happy.

There were mysterious leakages in the narcotics service. A man in San Francisco would inform the narcotic authorities in Washington that a certain shipment was due to arrive on a certain day—and the people making the shipment seemed to have a telepathic "hunch" that made them ready with a perfect alibi.

But nobody could do anything about it. The whole government machinery seemed to be clogged with a sort of fog of misunderstanding and indirection which always comes when the man with the authority has no responsibility and the man with the responsibility has no authority.

CHANGE COMING

This will all be changed now. The Bureau of Narcotics will stand on its own feet, do its own work and take its own praise and blame.

The League of Nations Narcotics Committee, which was going to do such wonderful work in bringing about an international agreement on the dope situation, has simply marked time and very slow time at that.

It is quite plain to every one who has studied this question that we cannot expect much help from any outsiders when it comes to the control of narcotics in this country.

GOOD MAN NEEDED

Now that the Senate has cut the red tape, we begin to look for results. The next thing to consider is the choice of a man to head the new narcotic bureau.

The man at the head of the new narcotic bureau must be a man and not a weakling.

President Hoover undoubtedly has such a man already in mind.

We ought to hear the good news about him and his appointment before long.

SIMMONS' BOLT COSTS HIM HIS SENATE TOGA

Democrats Avenge Party By Turning Down Veteran Senator by 75,000 Votes

International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Whatever other hopes the Republicans may have had of making permanent the 1928 penetration of the Solid South appeared shattered today on the heels of the smashing defeat sustained by Senator Furnifold M. Simmons for renomination in North Carolina primary Saturday.

It was a bolt from Democratic ranks by one who, along with Senator James Cannon, . . . throughout the South.

Now he has lost his Senate agency with the passing of the 70th Congress. He loses the Senate seat which he has occupied for . . . and with it goes the . . . which has been . . . with him for more than a quarter of a century. The Democrats of North Carolina rose on Saturday and dethroned . . . in revolt on the single issue of . . . the 18th amendment of the national . . . 1928.

Advices . . . Washington this morning . . . that Josiah W. Bailey, Raleigh lawyer, had defeated . . . by approximately 75,000 votes. The magnitude of Simmons' defeat amazed even those who . . . the primary lose. And . . . Democrats . . . an opportunity . . . down the backs of . . . Democrats who were . . . to the Democratic . . . of two years ago.

HEFLIN DISCIPLINED

Senator . . . Heflin of Alabama, already . . . disciplined" for his bolt of Smith by being denied a place on the Democratic ticket for the August primary. Heflin plans to run anyway, as an independent, but the Simmons defeat makes his chances look . . . too good.

On the . . . Democratic leaders here were . . . today to interpret the . . . North Carolina result as . . . that the South . . . stern assault . . . Republicanism. . . . Democratic leaders . . . promising means . . . the evacuation of all the . . . which the party . . . during the . . . South.

LED HOOVER FIGHT

Due to Simmons' . . . and leadership, Hoover won North Carolina by some 60,000 and carried with him two Republican Congressmen. Simmons has lost the state by about 75,000 in a primary that saw only a few thousand Republicans vote.

The retirement of Simmons from the Senate next March means a complete realignment of the party in the Senate. While not the Democratic leader, Simmons nevertheless has been a powerful figure. He has been the ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee and during the Wilson administration was its chairman. His departure now means that Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, steps into the place as the Democratic leader in taxation, tariff and fiscal legislation.

There were only 41 white persons found in the island group this year, while the half-castes numbered less than three per cent of the balance.

MOVIE REPORT AWAITED BY CLUBWOMEN

Mrs. Diehl's Recommendation Up to League; Fight Looms On Official 'Exploitation'

International News Service

DENVER, June 9.—The meeting of state presidents for nomination of officers and a lively battle certain to be precipitated over so-called "exploitation" of the federation by its officers will occupy delegates to the twentieth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here today.

[illegible] officers [illegible] will [illegible] except [illegible] The terms of Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, Portland, Ore., expires and it is predicted she will be succeeded by Mrs. Edward Hamilton, Sioux City, Ia.

AWAIT MOVIE REPORT

With the expected arrival today of Mrs. Anderson N. Hardy, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the moving picture committee of the federation, discussion also centered on the failure of the report Mrs. Hardy would make to the convention.

Mrs. Howard D. Bennett and Mrs. J. Allen Hoover, of Baltimore, are expected to protest against continued commercialization of the federation by its own officials.

Mrs. Bennett has prepared a resolution condemning alleged acceptance by federation officials of lucrative positions with private organizations and using their federal affiliations to further the interests of their employers.

AIMED AT CALIFORNIAN

Mrs. Bennett's resolution, she admitted, is aimed chiefly at Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, past president of the federation and a delegate from Hollywood, who was appointed associate director of public relations for the motion picture producers and distributors at a yearly salary of $8,000.

Mrs. Hoover bitterly criticized activities of other high officials of the women's organization in connection with propaganda distributed by the so-called "power trust." She declared:

"It was embarrassing to hear how the power trust controlled the federation, but those of us who believe the club women of America have a responsible part to play in the development of this country will refuse to be silent when a great moral issue is involved—like the apparent 'sell out' to the moving picture industry."

Bridge Ceremony Halts to Speed Honeymoon

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 9.—AP—In these modern days of speed, even bridge dedications must not hold up a honeymoon.

When Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shallcross stopped their car at the new Platts Ferry bridge here and asked to get across an attendant balked.

"Can't you see they are dedicating this bridge? Some of the biggest men in the state have got to make speeches—it may be some time before you can cross."

said Shallcross.

"But we must get across at once. We are going places."

His wife echoed:

"Yes, we are. We are going on our honeymoon."

The attendant capitulated. He called a superior officer who stopped the ceremony, speeches and all, and waved the couple across.

GIRL POISONED, MAN SOUGHT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 9.—(INS)—Investigation of the death of Ursula Lang, 19, immigrant from Germany, found dead from poison in a hotel room here, turned today to a search for her male companion.

Police of Milwaukee and Chicago have joined in the hunt for the man who registered with the girl as Mr. and Mrs. D. Andrews, Muskegon, Mich.

The fact that the poison container could not be found in the dead girl's room led police to believe that she had been forced to drink the poison.

The girl's identity was revealed in a note evidently written in a man's handwriting, which was pinned to her pillow. It simply instructed police to notify Mrs. P. J. Pollmer, of Chicago, the dead girl's sister.

UPTURN AHEAD' CUTTEN SAYS

International News Service

CHICAGO, June 9.—Arthur W. Cutten, whose shrewd stock market operations are as brilliant as ever, in an interview with the Economist and Magazine of La Salle Street, he said:

"I look for the stock market to begin its long expected upturn in August and to reflect the definite betterment of business by fall. The second quarter will be about as disappointing as was the first. I might say the result, marketwise, will prove to be fully on a par with the trend of business, on which the stock market depends for its very existence.

"But the third quarter period should witness an upward turn, and the fourth should mark developments that will be satisfactory to all those who invest rather than those who speculate. And people who have returned to a more normal state of mind with respect to the stock market and who no longer, if they ever did, look upon it as some magnified form of roulette in which luck plays the chief role will be satisfied with the turn the stock market will take."

This Poor Old Lady Once Inherited a Fortune . . . .

One of the famous lawyers of early Pittsburgh left a large estate to his two elderly sisters; and also life insurance to be paid in installments of $1,000 a year to each sister for 20 years.

In time, the estate dwindled, through inexperienced management, and the insurance income was the sole support of these sisters for years.

But both outlived the 20 years of insurance payments, and were left without a penny of income.

One of them has dropped out of sight. The other is now scrubbing at nights in a downtown building.

She is very old and almost penniless.

The insurance company, having no discretionary powers, had to pay the insurance proceeds just as the old lawyer had directed.

If that insurance had been left to this Company in an Insurance Trust we would, under the discretion vested in us, have pointed out the situation to the sisters and induced them to live within their means.

Place your insurance in an Insurance Trust at The Colonial Trust Company.

What is an Insurance Trust?

It is the modern system for protecting and improving the capital you leave to protect those who are to benefit from it.

The Trustee collects the insurance, invests it wisely and pays it out as you direct.

You can instruct The Colonial Trust Company to use its discretion in the use of the money, and your family will never have to face the situation the two old sisters encountered. No insurance company has this discretionary power.

Every insurance company will co-operate with you and The Colonial Trust Company under an Insurance Trust.

The Officers in the Trust Department at The Colonial Trust Company will be glad to confer with you on an Insurance Trust

BEATIFIED NUN PAID HOMAGE BY POPE

Pius XI Leaves Vatican for Services in St. Peter's Honoring Paola Frassinetti

VATICAN CITY, June 9.—(AP.)—Pope Pius XI, surrounded by his blue-clad noble guard and the Cardinals of Curia in purple, and fine lace, descended from the Vatican Palace into St. Peter's yesterday to do homage to the memory of Blessed Paola Frassinetti, beatified in imposing ceremonies.

This was the first of the cycle of beatifications and canonizations to take place this month, which is the last of the prolonged "jubilee year" set apart to celebrate the Pope's half century of priesthood. The fact that it fell on the Feast of Pentecost, or Whitsunday, added to the solemnity of the rites.

50,000 IN ST. PETER'S

The great congregation of more than 50,000 in St. Peter's, besides hearing the Te Deum thanksgiving service in the beatification, was also privileged to hear Pontifical Vespers sung as only the Sistine choir can sing them.

The Pope proceeded to the altar of the confession, beneath which lie the remains of St. Peter himself, and upon which were laid the relics of the beatified nun, Paola Frassinetti. Above the altar hung her portrait, unveiled this morning.

The Pontiff remained for several moments kneeling in silent prayer for the repose of the holy woman's soul. Then he took his place on the throne and presided over the ceremony of benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

POPE GIVEN FLOWERS

At the conclusion he imparted the Apostolic Blessing, and thereafter some relics of Blessed Paola, together with a copy of her biography and a mass of fresh flowers, symbolic of the purity of her life, were presented to him.

St. Peter's will witness another beatification next Sunday of the venerable Conrad Von Parsham, brother of the Diocese of Passau. A number of imposing pilgrimages from Germany are expected, the largest being from Bavaria, where the venerable Conrad's life and works left a lasting impression.

LA GUARDIA TIPS PUBLIC ON DRY LAW

Tells How Wines, Beer Can Be Made Without Fear Of Prohibition Officers

WASHINGTON, June 9 — How to make home brew beer and wine without fear of prohibition agents was explained by Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), New York, in a statement to his constituents made public today.

The Department of Agriculture having issued a bulletin on the art of making intoxicating liquor, Representative LaGuardia said, he was glad to offer some suggestions for the rights of individuals, etc.

LA GUARDIA'S ADVICE

He said:

"While home brew is not the solution of prohibition, which can only be solved by the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, in the meantime, it is well that citizens should be informed of their rights without fear or molestation in order to enjoy a wholesome glass of wine—pardon me, fruit juice, so scientifically described in the Department of Agriculture bulletin."

Here are his points:

"1. The beverage must be made in the home and consumed in the home. It cannot be transported.

"2. It can be made only in such quantities as is in keeping with the size of the family the mode of living and proportionate to the means of living of the family.

MUST BE HOME

"3. The home must be used exclusively for dwelling purposes. It must not include a store or any public place.

"4. The beverage may be called wine or beer but it must not be labeled as such.

"5. The beverage must be non-intoxicating in fact. That does not mean it must be only one-half of one per cent. It may be more. It is not for the prohibition department or any of its officials or agents to determine what is intoxicating. That is a matter which only the jury with the aid of the court can determine.

"6. The beverage must be for home use only and consumed only by members of the family and guests. It cannot be given to strangers—it cannot be sold to friends.

MUST HAVE WARRANT

"7. Police officers and government officials cannot enter a home used exclusively as a dwelling without a search warrant.

"8. The making of non-intoxicating beverages is specifically mentioned in Section 29, of Title 2, of the national prohibition act, which provides that 'the penalties provided in the act against the manufacture of liquor without a permit shall not apply to a person for manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit juice exclusively for use in the home.'"

MARION DAVIES CHARLIE CHAPLIN

Miss Davies at the premier in Los Angeles of her newest picture, "The Florodora Girl," story of the 1890s.

Men in Each Generation Love Women of Period, Marion Davies Told

HOLLYWOOD, June 9—Women of each generation have been admired, loved, sought after by the men of that generation.

One could hardly expect the dandies of the 60's to enthuse over the flappers of 1930.

And, what women think of women in this generation or what women thought of other women in generations past does not matter.

"Briefly, the point to the whole thing is simply that," wrote Mrs. Ted H. Kline, 17825 Cannon avenue, Lakewood, O. Her letter was one of the hundreds received today in the Marion Davies fashion contest at the New Pantages Theater where Miss Davies' latest picture, "The Florodora Girl," is being shown.

REFERS TO SHAKESPEARE

"One's mind goes instantly to Shakespeare's famous lines," declared Mrs. Kline.

"Age cannot wither her nor custom stale her infinite variety.

"In 1861, when great-grandmother kissed great-grandfather goodbye and sent him away to the Southern battlefields to the strains of 'The Battle Cry of Freedom,' was she any the less sweet or alluring, less sought after, less loved because of the hoopskirts and crinolines, because of the long white pantalettes that fastened around her ankles, because of the unusual coiffures and poke bonnets of that by-gone era?

"Not a bit!

"In 1881, when grandmother wore a long skirt, with a tight-fitting basque, panniers and big bustles; when the coiffures were enormous and much artificial hair worn, when she did the polka, mazurka and the lancers, was she any the less sweet, alluring, less sought after, less loved for it?

VOGUE OF 90's

"In 1890 when the new straight front and the habit back were the vogue, when the girls wore enormous pompadours with 'rats' in them, skirts that swept the ground and 'veranda' hats, was mother any less sweet, less alluring, less sought after, less loved?

"Ask dad. 'e knows.'

"In 1930, is the fourth generation with her bobbed hair, natural waistline, short skirts, et al., with her bare back, bare legs and her inability to dance anything but a fox trot, is she any less sweet, less alluring, less sought after, less loved?

"Of course not!"

END PETTING PARTIES

Other letters follow:

"After years of emancipation it is almost impossible for the average human to get back into the harness of long skirts and corsets. True enough, officers of the law would have fewer occasions to request parked cars to move on from lovers' lanes since petting parties would be almost prohibitive.

"MISS A. L. CHAMBERS,

"1010 Bush street, San Francisco, Cal."

PARIS INTERFERED

"The fashions were just about right before Paris tried to wish that raggedy-taggedy skirt onto us. I will say that it seems cruel to make children go with little bare legs in cold weather as is often seen; also many grandmas and near-grandmas, and women with humorously crooked legs, might do worse than drop their skirts a few inches. And I don't think these extremely boyish bobs are attractive in a girl. The medium bob is both manageable and pretty.

"ERNEST R. HOLLISTER,

"2070 Eddy street, Seattle, Wash."

AGAINST NEW STYLES

"As the French peasants said during the reign of terror, we also say: Extermination to Miss New Style and all her flufferies, accessories, followers and to herself forever and ever. Be she guillotined, quartered, destroyed, exterminated!

FERN M. EADS,

2523 A. South Side, Omaha, Neb.

LIKES OLD STYLES

"The styles of the gay nineties for ladies where modestly refined and very beautiful, I would like to see them come back which I think they will in the near future, and why not?

"In speaking of the fair sex these modern times, you so often hear men say, 'look at that woman', how harsh the word woman sounds to me yet it goes well with the short skirt.

"In the gay nineties the fair sex were looked on in a gentle, refined and modest manner more so than they are today, and when spoken of they were not called women, that was too common for such purity. They were called ladies and they looked and acted the part.

MEXICAN SLAIN IN SALOON ROW

LAREDO, Texas, June 9—(AP.)—Ramiro Lugo, 21, of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, is dead and Miguel Arradillas, desk sergeant at the Nuevo Laredo police station, is in a serious condition with a bullet wound in the face, after a shooting in a Nuevo Laredo saloon.

Gustavo Santos of Villa Dama, Mexico, was in jail charged with killing Lugo and wounding Arradillas.

Lugo and Santos quarreled, officers said, and the shooting started. After Lugo fell, mortally wounded, Arradillas was shot as he attempted to arrest Santos.

Corns

Stop Hurting Instantly

then Lift Right Off!

Drop "Freezone" on that aching corn. Instantly it stops hurting; then shortly you lift the corn right off with your fingers. You'll laugh, really! It is so easy and doesn't hurt one bit! Works like a charm, every time.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store, and is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, and callouses. Try it!

Can You Write On Style?

Do you remember the fashions of Florodora days?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you prefer those styles to the fashions for women today?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your ideas in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies, the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

$1,000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

CAUSE OF COLDS DISCOVERED

BALTIMORE, June 9—(AP.)—Dr. J. A. Pfeiffer, associate of the University of Maryland Medical School and well known scientist, announced his belief that he had discovered the cause of the common cold and a cure.

In a paper before the University of Maryland Biological Society, he announced that isolation of a microscopic organism and its identification as the source of man's most common and unpopular ailment. He described it as the micrococcus coryza.

A vaccine has been worked out and has proved successful in experiments with humans. The results, Dr. Pfeiffer said, showed that it is possible, using the vaccine to immunize people against catching colds for one to three years. It also is possible, he said, to break up a cold with the vaccine.

SPEED JOB AID, HOUSE URGED

NEW YORK, June 9—(AP.)—Several hundred members of national organizations of economists, sociologists, social workers, statisticians, personnel administrators and others professionally concerned with employment problems have signed a letter forwarded to Representative Graham, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, urging passage of three Senate bills designed to anticipate unemployment crises. It said:

"We believe these bills, taken as a unit, lay the foundation for a permanent national program of preventing or relieving widespread unemployment."

The letter said two of the bills, providing for more efficient employment offices and better planned public works, "are practical and widely approved," while the third bill, for better statistics, "has already been reported favorably by the Committee on Labor."

She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—do not overeat—walk a little each day.

Be sure and do this every morning for it's the little daily dose that takes off the fat—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen Salts health that exists particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's pep, the giving salts is carried to every organ, gland, nerve and tissue of the body, and this is followed by that Kruschen feeling of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful thoughts and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 8½c bottle of Kruschen Salts from May's & Liggett's Drug Stores or any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.

ACTION DELAYED ON GOSSER JOB

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Senator David A. Reed let it be known he does not plan to take action on appointment of a successor to Postmaster George W. Gosser, of Pittsburgh, until after the Senate disposes of the pending tariff bill conference report.

Since his return from the London naval conference Senator Reed has taken an active part in deliberations over the tariff measure, now in its final stages.

Expectations are an agreement between the two houses may be worked out within the next 10 days, following which Senator Reed may go to Pittsburgh for a final conference with local leaders over the postal vacancy.

Postmaster Gosser is ineligible for reappointment, having reached the age of forced retirement. Postmaster General Walter F. Brown sought to have the retirement act amended to permit him to serve two more years, but the proposal was rejected by Congress.

"The Tale of a Hero" from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Sadko" will be sung for the first time by Miss Swarthout on the General Motors Family Party, WCAE at 9:30. Irma de Bault, soprano, will treat us with the famous coloratura aria "Swiss Echo Song" which she appears with Evening in Paris, WJAS at 9:30.

BOULDER DAM START ASSURED

WASHINGTON, June 9.—(Universal)—The way was cleared to start work on the great Boulder Dam project when Attorney General Mitchell today ruled that the contracts for sale of water and power already entered into by the government are valid.

The attorney general's opinion was submitted to Representative Will R. Wood, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, who requested it following President Hoover's request for an appropriation of $10,660,000 to start work on the vast Colorado River project.

As a result, that amount will be included in the second deficiency bill, which is to be passed by Congress before adjournment of the present session.

BANK ROBBERY FAILS, 1 SLAIN

WILBURTON, Okla., June 9—(AP)—Killed in a gun battle with officers who frustrated a bank robbery at Tuskahoma, the body of a man identified as James C. Bargsley was found in an abandoned automobile here five hours later. The body bore a bullet wound in the neck.

The robbery was frustrated when Jim Payne, a deputy sheriff, and Verdy Hicks, Tuskahoma night watchman, accosted three men as they were opening the screen door of the First State Bank of Tuskahoma. After an exchange of shots the bandits escaped in an automobile in which a woman was waiting.

Payne and Hicks identified the body as that of one of the men in the attempted robbery. His accomplices are believed to have escaped in another car.

STUDENT HELD IN AUTO DEATH

WINSTED, Conn., June 9—(AP)—Henry A. Rumsey, Jr., of Chicago, a student at Williams College, was held by coroner Samuel E. Herman in connection with the death of Leon Blanchard, 43, of Danville, Conn., in an automobile accident.

Blanchard and Allen Seymour, a tire repairman, were fixing a tire on Blanchard's machine on the Norfolk highway when Rumsey's automobile crashed into Seymour's parked car, driving it against the two men. A tire tool entered Blanchard's body, causing fatal injuries. Seymour and Rumsey were injured.

RHEUMATIC PAINS WERE BANISHED BY NEW KONJOLA

"It Is a Pleasure to Endorse the Medicine That Ended My Suffering," Says Grateful Lady.

What cheerful, encouraging news is that which Konjola, the new and different medicine, is bringing to victims of rheumatism, many of whom had just about abandoned hope of ever escaping from the cruel clutches of this dread ailment.

MRS. ANNIE ROVESTI

Also stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles; neuritis and nervousness are finding their master in this new medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs of known medicinal value. Konjola, remember, is not a medicine designed to give mere temporary relief. Konjola is not that kind of medicine. Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. This new medicine cleanses and stimulates; opens the door for Nature to assert itself. Six or eight bottles should be taken to receive a fair treatment. Would you see how Konjola works? Then consider the experience of Mrs. Annie Rovesti, 313 Hickman street, Bridgeville, Pa., near Pittsburgh. Then visit the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth Street, this city, and hear the remarkable story of this remarkable medicine. Just recently Mrs. Rovesti said to the Konjola Man:

"It is a pleasure to indorse Konjola, the medicine that ended my suffering, and I tried many other remedies without results before I put Konjola to the test. I had rheumatism in my limbs and, as everyone knows who has had this dread ailment, the aches and pains were dreadful. In addition to rheumatism, I suffered from indigestion; my appetite was poor, and I could not sleep soundly nor get my proper rest. Severe headaches were common occurrences.

"After reading many indorsements of Konjola, I decided to give it a trial. By the time I had finished the third bottle my condition had improved wonderfully. This gave me faith and encouragement, and I eagerly continued with the treatment. Ten bottles of Konjola completely solved my health problems. I now eat hearty meals; food digests better; I sleep better, and rheumatism is practically gone. I feel and look better than I have for years, and I gladly give Konjola all the credit for the new health I am now enjoying."

Konjola has won and kept a million friends just by doing what it is designed to do. All that is asked for this master medicine is that it be given a chance to prove its merits.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man.

Konjola is sold also by all Dow stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Ken Is a Heavy Loser in Stock Market Crash

CHAPTER LII.

Carolyn Forsythe was giving a New Year's Eve party.

When Tom mentioned it—taking it for granted that she was going with him, Ardeth had hesitated. Unfair, to give Tom all her spare time . . . ran her thought. Unkind to lead him on in this manner . . .

Tom's lips had a wry little twist. "Don't be afraid Ardeth this isn't leading up to another proposal. I guess the silent partnership of the shop is the best I can hope for."

Ardeth tried to grin in reply but it was . . . wholly a success. "Now Tom . . . you would have to make me feel bad! Oh my dear I wish things were different. I'd rare to make you happy—you know that don't you?"

He patted the kind little hand which had gone to his arm, a pat supposed to be reassuring and very brotherly. "You good little kid, of course I know it. Well—then you're coming. I'll tell Carolyn."

The Forsythe home standing in the midst of its dark gardens was in a festive glow that night. It had lost its usual air of bright primness for the time being under the red and green of holiday decorations. Just as Carolyn had lost her bright primness and become a rosy and slightly anxious hostess.

Looking at her rosy face and plump body Ardeth thought of Dickens' creation, pretty Dot Peerybingle.

Thinks of Future

The French doors were flung open between the large rooms. A five-piece dance orchestra played at one end of the long space. Serpentine and confetti made an unusual splotch of color against the dignified background.

Ardeth was slender and lovely in cream lace and she spoke with a vivid gaiety which gave no hint of her own serious thoughts. New Year's Eve . . . the brink of another year . . . What could it hold for her? she wondered somberly. Was it empty and grudging like the one which was slipping away tonight? What did it hold for Ken?

The hours became milestones to laugh and dance away. Her face was a mask to hide her feelings. She slipped into the bedroom, ostensibly to powder her face—really to relax from her forced vivacity. A relief to be here alone in the shaded light. She went to the open window and drew deep breaths of the fresh sweet air blowing in from the garden.

The voices of two men startled her as they paused in the hall for a smoke. They were discussing the stock market. At first she listened apathetically, barely noting the meaning of the words.

Ken Loses in Market

"A lot of fellows we know got caught in that jam when Consolidated Rubber dropped. Glad it caught me with only a few shares—and those I'd bought outright. I hear that Lane dropped quite a sum on that stock. And Gleason too. Caught him bad. He lost all he put in—and a lot more."

"If the damn fools will buy on margin, what do they expect?" came the second impatient voice. "I won't touch a thing that isn't bought outright. But Gleason's been plunging for quite a while now."

"Yes, and between ourselves Ken can't afford to lose," went on the first voice. "I saw him late today. He looks like the devil. I think he's on the skids if you ask me. Darned nice fellow, too. . . ."

The two men moved on, the smoke of their cigars lingering in the hall after them.

Like a couple of voices off stage thought the girl who listened in the bedroom. A couple of voices which started the plot rolling.

Out of the mirror the consciousness of her own white face grew upon her. In the depths of the shadowy eyes a sudden resolve growing.

She was running through the dark garden clutching her coat collar about her throat, high heels turning uncertainly under her.

Late blooming roses and damp earth . . . black star-encrusted sky.

Goes to Ken's Office

She was stealing down red brick stairs leading to a back street and there was an empty taxi cruising toward her. She hailed it giving the number of the building where Ken had his office.

Dark blocks reeled off beneath the taxi wheels while the girl sat tense on the edge of the seat, her eyes staring with strange fixity.

The taxi slowed. Almost stopped. Crept through traffic. A city gone mad with merriment. A sea of faces flashing by the windows. Men's faces. Women's faces. Distorted with laughter. A steadily increasing roar surging like the wash of the sea. Confetti dashed at the window. Horns thrust against the glass. Screamed greetings.

A swerve into a blessedly dark street. The taxi stopped. The girl who got out of the cab was trembling and there was smothered excitement in her throat. She paid the driver in a frenzy of haste and ran across to the entrance of the building, her silver slippers flashing in the starlight.

The elevator operator looked at her curiously as he carried her up to the ninth floor, but Ardeth never saw him. A look of strangeness in her eyes—as though she watched some vision hidden to others.

Ardeth Frantic

She was running down the corridor, past rows of glass-topped doors which gleamed coldly in the hall lights.

Ken's office—the frosted top of the door showing a light in the room beyond. Ardeth shook the knob, calling his name in a low stifled voice.

An exclamation. A footstep within. The door hastily opened and Ken caught her in his arms as she almost fell into the room.

"Ardeth!" he exclaimed in wonder.

She was frantically touching his face, clasping his shoulders as though she assured herself of his reality.

"You're all right? Ken you are? Tell me—tell me darling!"

"Of course! Why—what's the matter, dear? Why did you come here?"

He held her away, his eyes searching her face. White as chalk, eyes wide and wild. His gaze took in her bare shoulders, the incongruous lace dress showing under her coat. Her ruffled gold head.

She saw the utter amazement in his eyes and the strangeness suddenly went out of her eyes, softened with tears. She tried to smile, her mouth twisted strangely and tears rolled down her cheeks.

The Sole Survivors

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

THE SUNNY LANDSCAPE behind Gloriette's brief years is a sort of battlefield. Just Gloriette herself and Love himself survive. And Love's sort of all wo' out from the lively engagement that this young Joan of Hearts has led him into.

"The boys" are just notches in her gun to Gloriette. Just so many victims. She doesn't scalp 'em—but she'd like to. She's a true genus-flirt. For not only the handsome and the brave have been her goal. The fat, little, plain man, bachelor and bashful, was irresistible to Gloriette's kind heart—she just wanted to give the dear a good time and a whirl—he seemed so lonely! The tall, grave scientist, who was interested in a big way, in everything BUT the puzzle called GIRL; he was just too sweet, and it was a thrill to bend every talent to make him laugh! Just once. And he did. The little lady-killer, who had never been known to be silent in all his manhood years, lost his voice and his jokes to Gloriette. He couldn't think of a joke for quite a while after the summer that he knew her. Soldier, sailor, broker, baker, actor, worker, schoolboy, joker. All grist to Gloriette's little mill that was a music-box, too, and made melody while it ground.

No one "as you were" but Gloriette. Even Love a wounded prisoner. But Gloriette herself perches on the world, preening her feathers, batting a bit of powder on her nose for the next comer, arranging a curl, eyeing her pretty hat, straightening her bow-knot of her cape a bit, and lo! she's ready for another summer.

History is alive with stories of other Gloriettes. Sole survivors. Waterloos for even Eros himself.

Katherine Explains How Troublesome Letters Began

"The letters!" I echoed as Katherine paused after telling me that she and Lillian ought to have had sense enough to censor the post, as Noel had been getting along beautifully until the letters came. "Did Jack Leslie dare?"

"We don't know," Katherine answered.

"Katherine," I said imperatively, "Do you mean that Harry hasn't been able to get hold of Leslie as he planned?"

"That's the lamentable truth, old dear," she replied. "And Harry's certainly all hot and bothered about it. I haven't seen him so upset over anything in a long time. I think he thought it would be comparatively easy to round up Jack, but the lad seems to have disappeared from the face of the earth. Harry thinks he's faded out of the picture for awhile, probably gone to another city without confiding his plans to anybody. He's a canny lad, Harry opines, and he probably knows that a secret known to two people has distinct possibilities of becoming public property."

"Getting out of the city and keeping quiet for awhile—yes, that would be his logical procedure," I said thoughtfully. "He's accomplishing his first object of terrifying Noel and Mary concerning each other's safety, and he no doubt knows the effect of suspense upon such highly strung nerves as Noel's. Harry is right. He's diabolically clever."

"You don't need that last word," Katherine retorted. "He's simply devilish with the addition of a revenge complex that's about as near insanity as you'd want to see."

"I know," I interposed hastily. "That old incident of the stolen rings at college. But he knows, or ought to that Noel had nothing to do with his being branded—rightfully—as the thief. You know that Noel after Leslie had thrown suspicion his way, refused to clear himself because a girl was involved and took his dismissal from college without protest and without betraying Jack."

"I know that chapter by heart," Katherine rejoined a bit impatiently. "I also know the next one, relating how Philip Veritzen, guessing the truth of the story and not being able to shake Noel's stand, did some sleuthing on his own hook which revealed Leslie's part in the affair, and resulted in his expulsion from college. Noel could have been reinstated if he only had spoken in his own defense, for the college authorities were convinced of his innocence. But his silence gave them no alternative but to let him go, and for years his father refused to speak to him. Pleasant old party, Philip Veritzen, spoiling his son's life for years, then giving him a taste of what it meant to be the son of a rich and indulgent father for a few months, and finally tossing him overboard again because Noel couldn't make the old lad's asinine dream of a royal alliance come true!"

"You're letting your indignation run away with you," I reminded her smiling. "You were talking about Jack Leslie's revenge complex weren't you you switched to Philip Veritzen's sins."

"Right you are, old dear," she rejoined. "I do see red everytime I think of Phil Veritzen lately.

"But I haven't told you about the letters," she said. "Score one for you, old dear, I haven't. It's something easily remedied, for there isn't much to tell. I'll begin at the beginning for me, the day I got in to the city. Lillian told me that Noel's condition was much better than it had been, and he continued to improve steadily until two days ago. Then these letters came. I remember them because they were the only ones for Mary and Noel in that mail. They were not in the same hand-writing and they were enclosed in envelopes of different shape and size. One was postmarked Philadelphia and the other Boston. Yet I had the queer little feeling that the two letters were oddly alike and that they had come from the same person."

There is a merry twinkle in her eye as she carries her new parasol!

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Slump in Heart-Balm

The recent slump in stocks appears to be nothing beside the slump in heart-balm!

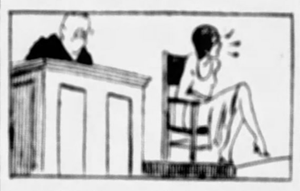
A Russian princess is suing for a mere $25,000 for the alienation of her ex-husband's ex-affections. Some men would consider that more of an insult than a compliment.



Only three or four years ago a popular prima donna demanded $250,000 for the purloining of her husband's alleged "heart." Evidently the price of husbands is going DOWN!

We are beginning to discover that the kind of love that has to be fought for is not worth the wear and tear on a pair of boxing gloves. The love that has to be roped and tied isn't worth the cost of the rope.

* * *

Honest, steady, unwavering love—the kind that you don't have to work for or worry over or struggle to keep—is a priceless gem of the rarest quality. But the kind that you have to sue for isn't worth two cents. Yet a woman will sob her heart out over the "lost love" of a man who never loved anybody but himself.

* * *

When a man has a "going foot," not even a motorcycle policeman can stop him. And the greatest revenge a wife can have on the woman who tries to "steal him" from her is to let her HAVE him.

* * *

Often, the wife of a fascinating heart-collector, if the truth were known, would not only cheerfully hand over her husband's fluctuating "affections" to the other woman, but would pay her a bonus for taking him off her hands.

As a matter of fact, it is not so often "heart-balm" for which a woman sues, as it is VANITY-BALM. Even when a woman doesn't particularly want a man herself, she resents the reflection on her charms and the slur on her attractions when another woman calmly walks off with him.

YOU know how it is! You may have an old car on which the brakes refuse to work and whose engine always goes dead at a critical moment. You may leave it standing out in the rain and refuse to feed it enough oil and water. You may even plan to junk it. But just let somebody come along and try to drive off with it and you call out all the police!

Yet try to get RID of a broken-down flivver and you can't even GIVE it away! No matter how carelessly you leave it around, nobody ever steals it.

And, that's the way it is with a husband that you really don't want and have given up as a bad proposition. NO woman will take him off your hands. Which proves my old theory that the only way to hold onto a husband is not to TRY! Still, to ask $25,000 for a love that is not worth 25 cents is plain profiteering!

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

Has a woman, who is about to die, the right to demand of her husband the promise never to marry again as long as she lives?

A man in Tulsa, Okla., wants to know, and I'm mighty glad he put the question. I want to know, too. Personally, I think an unselfish wife will wish for one thing when she dies, and that is that her husband will find happiness. To tie those in life with promises of this kind is a rank injustice. Mr. Tulsa wants to know if that kind of a promise is a lie if a man doesn't keep it.

I would say no, it isn't. Giving comfort to a sick woman is unselfish, and it matters little how you give it, particularly when she is about to leave this earth forever.

After she has returned to the earth and is past suffering I think such a promise should be discarded just as the man discards the other things that are no longer of any use to her.

"Such a promise," says Mr. Tulsa, "is usually made to the wife, as the man controls such things in his will if he has that sort of mean disposition. Take the case of Thomas Jefferson, who courted many girls before he met the rich widow who married him. After her death he again had an eye for a pretty woman, but was not free to marry her. Oh no. His jealous wife in dying, feared that he might be no more loyal to the memory of his first wife, than she had been to that of her first husband, and she made him promise never to marry again.

There came a time when he almost broke his promise, but he could not lie to the dead, he said.

"One cannot blame a sick person for exacting such a selfish promise. The blame is rather on the living who let the dead rule and who feel that keeping such a promise is necessary."

What are your ideas on this subject?

A Farewell Letter of Good Wishes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A very dear friend is going away on quite a long journey. As it will be impossible for me to bid her farewell personally, I contemplate writing her a farewell letter. Just how should I word such a letter? I have never written a farewell letter before.

A. H.

In this letter chat with your friend about your hope for the happiness of her trip and make the rest of the letter an informal chat such as you would write in any other kind of letter. If you have been to the places where she is going, then, of course, it would be natural for you to write her of your experience there and to make some suggestions as to what she would probably enjoy seeing there and doing there.

The Employer's Bon Voyage Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been employed in an office for the past ten years as a stenographer, and my employer and his wife are sailing for Europe soon. Would it be proper for me to send them flowers? M.

Yes; this would be a very charming thing for you to do.

Responsibility of the Patron and Pantroness

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My mother and father have been asked to be patroness and patron at a concert to be given by a friend. I would be very grateful if you would tell us what the responsibilities or privileges connected with their acceptances are. It will be a public concert in a downtown hall. A. F.

This charming honor carries with it only the social responsibility of allowing their names to be used on the programme. After that, like the bridesmaids at a wedding, they "just look nice and act graciously."

Household Hints

To remove alcohol spots from varnished wood rub with linseed oil. Or mix linseed oil with rottenstone (having plenty of oil to lubricate the rottenstone, so that it will not scratch.

The color of a varnish finish that has been turned white by water or by hot plates can be restored by rubbing with a piece of flannel dampened with essence of peppermint or with spirits of camphor, followed after a few minutes by the application of any good furniture polish.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

When Cold Spreads to the Larynx

Our breathing apparatus is a wonderfully made piece of machinery. The larynx is situated below the tonsils, between the back of the mouth and the bronchial tubes.

DR. COPELAND

On the outside of the throat you can see that prominence known as "Adam's Apple," which is made up of plates of cartilage or gristle. It lies directly in front of the vocal cords. Back of these plates the vocal cords stretch across the hollow space. All these structures make up the larynx.

The entire breathing apparatus is lined with a delicate tissue or mucous membrane, which extends without interruption down to the base of the bronchial tubes. When this mucous membrane becomes inflamed for any reason, either a light or a very acute attack of laryngitis may follow.

A sudden cold, or in cases of chronic catarrh, infection may be carried into the larynx. It may be a plain, simple inflammation or it may have an infectious character. It may accompany some constitutional disease or appear after a period of strain. Tobacco smoke, or irritating gases, drafts of air or getting wet may cause laryngitis.

The first symptom of laryngitis is hoarseness. It hurts to talk or to swallow. The throat aches and the victim feels uncomfortable in general. In an acute attack there may be fever, increased heart action, headache and much discomfort.

Sometimes there is a complete loss of voice. Mucous is coughed up in considerable quantities, and possibly some blood. The coughing is the most prominent symptom. Some persons who use their voices much of the time may be afflicted with laryngitis.

Those who have trained voices seldom have these troubles. Their vocal cords are properly used. They use the organs so that there is an absence of strain.

One of the reasons why a cold should not be neglected is because of danger of the infection spreading to the larynx or ears. Inflammation begins in the mucous membrane of the nose and may extend down the whole length of the bronchial tubes. This is of common occurrence in persons with a slightly run-down condition.

During an acute attack of laryngitis special attention must be given to the bowels to keep them open. The patient should be kept warm in bed, with the windows open for ventilation. He should be given only the most simple food.

Spraying the throat with a hot boracic acid solution or some good alkaline spray is excellent. If the throat is not too sore a gargle of hot water will ease the throat.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

It is very sad the way perfectly nice necks go wrong. It is usually due to neglect. When fiddle strings begin to appear, exercises will strengthen fibers. Turn the head from side to side and forward and back. A sallow surface gives way to applications of lemon juice. Circular lines vanish if the head is held erect and a heavy cream is applied at night. Cold compresses following the massage improve the skin texture.

Through anatomical defects a woman may fall far short of the standard of beauty. Yet attractiveness through the development of the mind and the spirit is possible to anyone with a seeing eye. The commonest beauty ill is lack of charm, the dull, wearing personality. You know! The woman who talks colorlessly about nothing. Her children, her ills, her troubles! She sets nerves to sizzling and her acquaintances grow tired of her.

SCHOOLEY OUT OF RACE

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley today denied a current report that he likely would become Republican city chairman to succeed State Senator James J. Coyne, who has declined to run again.

Schooley pointed out that his political affiliation is with Mayor Charles H. Kline, and would therefore, make no pact to become city chairman with County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, as was stated.

Chairmen of the city and county committees will be elected by members of the executive committees of the 32 city wards next Saturday, and present indications point to Armstrong's re-election without serious opposition.

Friends of Mayor Kline, who appears to be in a position to dictate the selection of a city chairman, declare the Mayor has made no decision as to whom he would support, although there is ground for believing it will be Traffic Court Magistrate W. J. Soost, Republic chairman of the Eleventh Ward.

Others mentioned are President of Council John S. Herron and Dr. F. H. Frederick, president of the Civil Service Commission.

61ST ANNIVERSARY

TRAFFIC TIED UP BY N. S. FIRE

Seven fire companies fought a two-alarm blaze in an unoccupied three-story brick building owned by Armour & Co. at 310-314 Anderson street this morning.

A young woman employed by Swift & Co. across the street, first noticed the blaze and notified a patrolman, who called firemen.

Flames leaped from windows of the second and third floors and for a time threatened to communicate to adjoining frame buildings. Damage, estimated at $3,000 was caused to the upper floors.

Traffic was halted and five street car lines serving the Millvale, Etna, Troy Hill and Fineview districts were rerouted for an hour.

The building for 25 years was the branch house of Armour & Company. It was abandoned about a year ago. The origin of the blaze is undetermined.

CLERICAL CHECK PASSER HELD

A clerical collar enabled James Carr alias Frank Watson, of Boston and Brooklyn, accused of passing bad checks, to pose as a Catholic priest and a Methodist minister, detectives testified in Central Police Court today when he was arraigned.

Carr was arrested at the Fort Pitt Hotel on complaint of the management, according to Detectives Thomas Morgan and Walter Monaghan.

He is alleged to have tendered a check for $25 twice the amount of his bill, and to have received half of the amount in cash. Carr previously had obtained money in the same manner in Sewickley, the sleuths said. The checks were worthless, they testified.

Carr was ordered held over by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg until detectives broadcast his description to learn if he is wanted in other cities on similar charges.

GIRLS KIDNAPED BY NEGROES

The Hill District was being scoured by police today for two Negroes who kidnaped two girls, one 14 and the other 15, and took them for a ride last night.

Five hours later their assailants brought them back and threw them out of an automobile near Malone Field, Shawnee street, the girls related to police. Suffering from shock, the two were treated at the Mercy Hospital and then taken to their homes in White street, Herron Hill.

The Sun-Telegraph will not publish the names of the girls because of their age.

The girls told police they were abducted while walking in Cherokee street, near Iowa street, shortly after 7 p. m.

Institute Opened By Church Workers

The tenth annual institute for vacation church school workers of the Pittsburgh district was to start today in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street. The school is being held under the joint auspices of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches and the Allegheny County Sunday School Association. Sessions are scheduled for both morning and afternoon today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

Dormont Appoints Fourth Committees

A. P. Weston has been appointed chairman of the committee to arrange the annual Fourth of July celebration to be held in Dormont this year. Mr. Weston has appointed the following aides: C. E. Glass, F. P. Mauns, F. Perry Johnston, William T. Sims, George D. Cheska, Dr. J. M. Luther, P. H. Johnston and H. P. Anderson.

Dormont Mothers To Hold Banquet

The annual banquet of the Dormont Mothers club will be held tomorrow evening at the Congress of Clubs rooms. At the annual meeting Mrs. H. A. Gale was elected president. Other officers are: Vice president, Mrs. C. E. Glass; second vice president, Mrs. Donald Maxwell; secretary, Mrs. C. A. Shoup; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Baker.

Girl star's beauty bath

Lovely Lilian Bond, 19 year old Leading Lady of "Follow Thru," knows you cannot be beautiful... charming ... unless your body is kept gloriously clean, healthy, free from odor. "I have found nothing to compare with Jap Rose soap for hands, face, hair and bath," says Miss Bond. Its deep-cleansing, quick rinsing glycerin lather leaves your skin tingling clean, delightfully smooth, fragrant as a petal. . . . Keeps your hair silky-smooth, sparkling clean. 10c, all dealers.

CHARLIE AND GEORGE FIGHT AND TALK IN HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Around the Corner" is the new talkie in the Harris. It co-features Charlie Murray and George Sidney. It is one grand fight.

There is a free-for-all fight at a masquerade party. There is a boxing bout in Madison Square Garden. And from beginning to end, George and Charlie battle each other like a couple of roosters.

Mr. Sidney has the role of Kaplan, a pawn-broker. And Mr. Murray again appears as a policeman. The story starts off with a baby being left on the Kaplan doorstep and with both men, bachelors, insisting on being its father.

HAS TWO PAPAS!

So the child, a girl, grows into womanhood with two fathers ever alert to her welfare. Each of them has a husband picked out for her. But she finds them. She decides to do something about this husband business herself. And she doesn't do bad at all. She picks a millionaire's son.

The picture is the type one always associates with the names of Murray and Sidney. Comedy is there in big doses. So is the usual movie hokum. And Charlie and George are the same old fellows—the same, except that George is growing stouter.

JUNGLE GARB

The romantic leads are played by Joan Peers, a comparative newcomer to the screen, and Larry Kent.

The stage has Victor Graff and the RKOliane all dressed up in white helmets and white pants like those tropical explorers you read about. The Oliane play a number of tunes and Mr. Graff sings some songs.

MOVIE CLOCK

Hours at which feature photoplays begin in first-run houses are in accordance with the following time schedule:

Going on Stage as Catchy As Measles for Those Gleason Babies

HOLLYWOOD, June 9.

Going on the stage in babyhood in the Gleason family is like measles in any other family. Catching!

When Russell Gleason was bundled up in a beautiful new blanket and carried on the stage in "Heir to the Hoorah," while his parents were appearing in that play in Portland, he may have thought it an unique experience for a baby.

When he was old enough to understand things he knew differently.

James Gleason, his father, was likewise carried on the stage in between howls when his mother and father were playing in Watertown, N. Y. Lucille Webster, Russell's mother, went on the stage in Oakland, Cal., as a very young girl wearing long brown - gold curls that had never been introduced to a hairpin.

James Gleason

WHEELED ON STAGE

Louise Crolius, Russell's aunt, who recently came to Hollywood from New York to make her home, was wheeled on the stage in a baby buggy when she was six months old. Sitting beside her in the double carriage in wide-eyed wonder was her twin brother. The play was "Jones' Babies."

Nina Crolius Gleason, Russell's grandmother, was only four years old when she was given a cork makeup and a pair of bright red flannel pants for a small part as a picaninny in a stage play.

JULIE STARTED IT

The first actress in the Gleason family was Julie Le Blanche, who was well known on the Paris stage. She came to New York at the height of her career and married Clarks Crolius, great grandfather of James.

All the Gleasons are now in Hollywood. James Gleason is under contract at Pathe to write and act. Mrs. Gleason (Lucile Webster) has just been signed by Columbia Studios as associate producer, the first job of its kind in Hollywood to be held by a woman. Russell is playing the male lead in the picture "Sisters." Louise Crolius was active in New York circles until recently. And Nina Crolius Gleason appeared regularly on the stage until an injury several years ago caused her temporary retirement.

TIBBETT'S NEW FILM

Lawrence Tibbett, star of "The Rogue Song," and Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera soprano, who recently signed a long-term Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, will be teamed in a picturization of "The New Moon." Jack Conway, who is now completing Lon Chaney's first dialogue picture, "The Unholy Three," will direct the screen version of Oscar Hammerstein's popular operetta, using the original musical score by Sigmund Romberg. The book by Frank Mandel and Lawrence Schwab is now being adapted to the screen by Sylvia Thalberg and Frank Butler, and dialogue will be prepared by Charles MacArthur.

Grace Moore

THOSE TILLER GIRLS!!

"Tiller's Sunshine Girls" means more than just 16 dancing beauties.

The term means that 42,000 highly trained dancers have been given to every nation under the sun through the Tiller organization.

And that John Tiller labored for more than 40 years in the north of England instilling in dancing girls the "Tiller discipline and precision" which is a by-word in the theater world.

Large branch schools in Paris, Berlin, London and New York assist in the work.

A hand-picked group of these dancers will appear in three radio pictures, "Half Shot at Sunrise," "Leathernecking" and "Babes in Toyland."

Many interesting steps including an entirely new routine, are promised by Mary Read, the girls' director.

She has served 30 years with "Tiller's"—14 of them in the United States, staging dances for Dillingham, Ziegfeld, Fred Stone, George White and others.

And she doesn't look a day more than 30—which suggests that the Tiller dance technique may be the route to the Fountain of Youth.

The average height of the Tiller dancers at RKO is 5 feet 2 inches; the weight, 108 pounds; and age, 22. All are fair, and require little, if any, makeup away from the cameras.

TWO DEAD, 20 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

William Ffarr,
On Vacation,
Dear Bill:

Our traveling correspondent, Max Henrici, at last sent us that postcard we've been waiting for from Mexico. His dispatch is as follows:

"In coming from Acapulco (which is a Mexican village) I traveled over a recently opened road through a wild and hitherto inaccessible region. Soldiers guard the road to keep the bandits away. We stopped in a village and I was saying to myself that the place was far removed from the ways of modern civilization when along came a soldier down the street, spinning a Yo-Yo."

Just like good old Max to remember us.

Thomas D. Jones, South Side alderman and magistrate of Morals Court, has a past. Almost white haired, honest of repute, dignified, a kind family man—we can prove that he was a snare drummer. Not only that, but he was famous as a "figure caller" when square dances were the thing.

He's gone to the Shrine convention in Toronto, Ont., where he will stage a comeback, playing a drum in Syria's Shrine band.

Andrew T. Park was recently appointed district attorney. We know that when he was very young, he took one of his first "dates" a box of candy, stayed in and shared it, and then wrapped what was left and took it home with him. And, Andy, we can produce witnesses.

Things that raise you off your seat: Sitting in a movie. House dark, organ playing. The play revolves about a comic, Edward Everett Horton. The play is half through. A strangely familiar face appears on the screen; we hear, more strangely, a familiar voice—one that we recognize but can't associate with the movies and talkies. The accent is pronounced. Horton, the star, is forgotten. Unannounced and unsung, we recognize that face. The ears are those of Vin Barnett, son of Edgewood and Braddock's Luke Barnett. We knew it was his, because he's out in Hollywood playing his papa's tricks on the picture stars.

Ralph Munn, the director of the Carnegie Libraries of Pittsburgh, once was a newspaper reporter.

A dentists' club had a dance the other night. The printed program was cut in the form of a tooth. Surgeons might copy, say, with one shaped like a tonsil; physical directors with a dumb-bell; bankers, a $10 bill and druggists a ham sandwich.

* * *

Jack Hiles, who looks swell in a polo suit, saw a Cooperstown farmer put out two "stop" signs on the Butler-Pittsburgh road the other evening while he led his cows across.

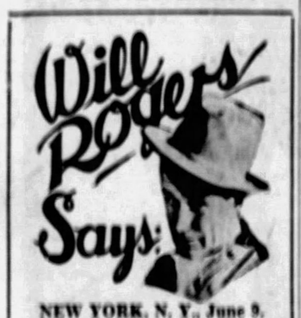
And in Carnegie Institute, they still call that center entrance "the carriage entrance," which would amuse almost anyone, on Mondays.

Yours,
ED PRENDERGAST.



NEW YORK, N. Y., June 9.

Well, Rumania ought to feel mighty proud today. Carol will be a great help to 'em. His lady friends will move in later.

After seeing a thing like this there is not much doubt as to why this country don't want to get mixed up with a mess like that.

I would like to see the congratulations that are sent by such men as Mr. Hoover and King George. Yours,

WILL.

Anne's Sister Gets a Job As Chorus Girl

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Larry Eaton, president of the Eaton Advertising Agency, is puzzled by the strange actions of his secretary, Janet Andrews, who has been in his employ for five years. When Miss Andrews starts to cry while taking dictation from him, Eaton allows her to go home for the rest of the day. Eaton then decides to get a new secretary. He plans to give Miss Andrews a long leave of absence and get pretty Anne Murdock to work in her place. Miss Murdock is secretary to the vice president of the concern. When Anne hears about the proposed change she is delighted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IV.

Anne lived in one of those suburbs of New York City which are neither town nor country. A suburb in which every little brick house is its neighbor's twin.

Anne's house was fifth in a row of 10. As the door was open she heard her mother's voice, with its rich hint of County Clare, raised in argument. Anne grieved. "Kathleen's at it again," she guessed as she walked in.

In the kitchen Mrs. Murdock was lecturing her youngest child, darting from stove to cupboard, a blue-bibbed apron tied about her round waist, every red hair in place above her flushed, animated face, one hand gesticulating with a large tin spoon.

"And that you shall not!" she ultimated as Anne entered.

Kathleen was sitting on the kitchen table swinging her beautiful legs. She was 19 years old. She had Anne's facial contour and Anne's dark blue eyes, but her hair was dusky black, and her full, startlingly painted mouth was weaker than Anne's, and at the moment mutinous.

"What's all the shootin' for?" Anne inquired as she seized her mother about the waist and implanted a hearty kiss under the little lady's left ear.

Kathleen, whose face had brightened at Anne's entrance, produced a package of cigarets from her pocket and reached for a match. She struck it and a moment later inhaled a lungful of smoke.

The Stage
Kathleen Gets Job as Chorus Girl

"Painted and smoking like a chimney!" commented their mother darkly.

Anne laughed. "Darling, you do fuss, don't you? Kathleen isn't hurting herself or any one else by some lip-stick and a cigaret now and then. I've been known to indulge in both myself."

"If I'd carried on that way," remarked Mrs. Murdock, "my old mother—rest her soul—would have killed me, and well I'd have deserved it!"

Anne swung herself up beside her sister and regarded her with indulgence. It was impossible to regard her otherwise. Kathleen was so pretty and Anne loved her so much. And she'd been a problem ever since leaving high school.

She had refused to take a business course and had spent her days hanging around the Long Island motion picture studios and getting work as an extra. Her father raged, and her mother stormed, and Anne stood as involuntary buffer between her sister and their parents. And now . . .

"She's going into the chorus, no less!" announced Mrs. Murdock, much as if she had said: "She's going to murder her invalid great aunt!"

Anne looked at her sister. Kathleen nodded and tossed her chin.

Anne's Dad
Has Reached Limit of Capabilities

"'The Sky Girl,'" she explained, "at the Forty-fifth Street Theater. Got in through Lola—the girl I met over at the studio. Watch my step, Anne; I'll soon be glorified by Ziegfeld."

"Golly, that's great!" said Anne.

There was no sanity in putting obstacles in Kathleen's way. She was more than stubborn, she was determined, and Anne had reasoned for some time that the more she was opposed the more set she'd be upon having her own way. Besides, so far as Anne was concerned, the stage, provided you liked it and were suited to it, was a perfectly good way of earning a living.

She said as much to her mother.

Mrs. Murdock sniffed. "Kathleen, get off that table and carry these things in for me," she commanded.

And Kathleen complied, smiling a little. She knew that Anne put the seal of her approval upon Kathleen's ambitions, in time Mrs. Murdock would set her seal there also.

"That's your father!" exclaimed Mrs. Murdock as a car rattled into the drive.

He came in presently, a tall man with dark graying hair and an intelligent, irritable face. He was shop foreman for one of the outlying districts of the gas company.

Dad Fretful
Enjoys Grievance Because Of Ailment

He had worked for the company since youth and had reached the limits of his capabilities. For, practical and competent though he was, he lacked education. He growled at the increased cost of living, but his salary, $3,000 a year, was to him a large one.

He had bought and paid for the little brick house on the usual "terms," had purchased in the same manner the radio, the phonograph, most of the furniture, the vacuum cleaner and the second-hand car in which he went to and from work. He had married Molly, his Irish-American wife, nearly 30 years ago, and they had been inarticulately happy and harried throughout their hard-working partnership.

Molly Murdock was an ambitious woman. She prodded and pushed her husband to his present position, and now could do no more for him. She loved him, scolded him and mothered him as she did her children. She shared the children with him as far as his saturnine temperament permitted, and exacted that they respect him and obey him in so far as they were temperamentally capable of so doing.

Murdock had a hair-trigger temper, was markedly fretful, suffering as he did from chronic dyspepsia for which he took quarts of patent medicine, and was, naturally, a man who enjoyed a grievance. But he was a good husband, a devoted, if peppery, parent, and a valuable, if sour-humored, employe.

So far as he was concerned, Mrs. Murdock's task of getting the family up in the world was finished. So she had turned her powers of ersuasion toward her children. She was immensely proud of them. Anne was her unfailing stand-by; Anne was impulsive, a little reckless, and in her her mother saw a warmth of nature, a giving spirit which occasionally caused her worry, but not too much.

Kathleen Quiet
Advised Against Telling Of Chorus Job

Kathleen was Mrs. Murdock's torment, her despair and her secret idol. No good would ever come of that wild girl! she deplored—but only to herself, and refusing really to believe her own harsh maternal prophecy.

As for Jim, the only son, he

Music for the dances was furnished by Miss Catherine Brose, pianist, and the Chartiers Council Orchestra.

The exhibition was given as a termination to the school year of athletic work.

I. C. C. HEARS RIVAL PLEAS FOR CONTROL OF W. & L. E. ROAD

WABASH CLAIM OPPOSES THAT OF P. & W. VA.

Magnates Carry on Battle For Line Linking Local District With Lake Erie

The Interstate Commerce Commission today is conducting hearings in Washington on rival applications for control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad link connecting the Pittsburgh district to Lake Erie. The applications of the Wabash Railroad and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad were to be heard.

In the Commission's own consolidation plan the Wheeling and Lake Erie is assigned to the Wabash system. The Nickel Plate railroad had made application for control of the link, but its plea was dismissed last week. The Nickel Plate contended the Wheeling should be part of its own system to maintain competition.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which is seeking control of the Wheeling, has also been alloted in the commission's consolidation program to the Wabash for the fifth system. In its application the Wabash offers $29,247,034 for the capital stock of the Wheeling now held in Cleveland by a trustee.

11 VARIETIES OF BERRIES

Strawberries are strawberries to the housewife when she buys them at the store, but to Western Pennsylvania fruit growers there are strawberries and some other strawberries.

In fact, three varieties are the real thing for this section. This was revealed today in a report of a test made by Allegheny County Farm Bureau Director Henry R. Eby and J. Lupton Mecartney, State College fruit specialist, at the fruit farm of Alfred P. and Roy R. Soergel in Wexford.

Of those large, juicy berries, the Lupton, Town King and May Queen were found to be the best growers in this section. For commercial values the test revealed the Premier, William Belt and Aberdeen the leaders out of 11 varieties.

TREATY CALMS FEAR OF TONG WAR HERE

Uneasiness Here Prompts Police to Precautionary Steps; Danger Passes

Fear of local tong warfare waned today when it was learned the national leaders of the Hip Sing and On Leong Tongs signed a peace treaty agreeing to outlaw Tong wars in New York permanently.

Despite the fact that a killing occurred in New York after the pact was signed, local police believe the danger of warfare here is past.

Pittsburgh's Chinatown had been uneasy for more than a week when rumors of another tong outbreak arose. Police prepared to cope with any situation that might arise, although no police protection had been asked by any member of either faction.

Reports that four Chinese hatchet men were imported here sent detectives scurrying to the Oriental colony in Second and Third avenues, between Ross and Grant streets, yesterday. The Hip Sing headquarters at 519 Second avenue yielded no trace of the supposed thugs. Neither did the On Leong headquarters in Third avenue.

Although none in authority would admit a tong outbreak was imminent, police hinted trouble was brewing because of Chinatown's unusual tranquility.

SEVEN SLAIN RECENTLY

New York, June 9.—(AP.)—Signing of a peace pact by national leaders of the Hip Sings and the On Leongs came after seven lives were lost in the past few days in alleged tong warfare in Chicago, Everett, Mass., Newark, N. J., and New York.

CHICAGO AWAITS CLASH

CHICAGO, June 9.—(AP.)—The police intelligence division, having intercepted telephone messages indicating Chicago Tongmen would disregard peace agreements in the East, had five squads and 25 extra patrolmen in Chinatown early today.

Chang Gong Gang, one of Chicago's wealthiest Chinese, was shot to death in the street Saturday.

In Minneapolis last night Woo Fam, a laundryman, was shot five times from a passing automobile.

ROBIN, KITTY BECOME PALS

There's a robin today in Avalon that has no fear of cats, at least of "Dawn of Avalon."

"Dawn" is a Silver Persian owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Glenn, of 509 Orchard street, Avalon. It quickly made friends with a young robin the couple raised. Nestling in the deep fur of Dawn, the young male robin finds a comfortable nest.

The robin was found in the Glenn yard three weeks ago following a wind storm. Too young to fly, Mrs. Glenn proceeded to nurse it. In the three weeks, the Glenns have had to tear up the board walk surrounding their home to find sufficient worms for the bird. It recognizes the whistle call of Mrs. Glenn and doesn't hesitate to hop on her extended finger.

WORKING ON 'BETWEEN-TIMES' CANVAS

ORTIZ ECHAGUE, SPANISH PAINTER, WORKING ON HIS CANVAS CALLED "ELOISE"

Senor Echague, Spanish painter in Pittsburgh to paint a group portrait of four sons of the Roy A. Hunts and a portrait of Mrs. Hunt, working on his "between-times" canvas.

International Artist Here for Portraits

By PENELOPE REDD.

Few painters are so international as Ortiz Echague, now in Pittsburgh, who was introduced to Pittsburgh through his contributions to the Carnegie International.

Penelope Redd

The only Spaniard who has ever won the gold medal in Paris, he is equally well known in the art world of Buenos Aires, Amsterdam, Rome and, in his native Madrid, diplomatic service.

An uncle in the ice in Paris, persuaded the parents of Ortiz Echague to send their gifted child to Paris.

Ortiz Echague entered Julian's when he was 14, to the disgust not only of the international corps of adult students, but to the models, who refused to pose until the "infant" had been removed.

The Spanish "infant," valiantly withstood the onslaught of drawing pads, paint tubes, and palettes, which greeted his first appearances at Julian's studio. Ultimately, he became the precocious one of the group.

WINS GRAND PRIZE

Returning to Spain, he quickly carried off the Prix de Rome, awarded but once in five years. In Rome, he met the future Senora Echague while painting her portrait as a commission. Sometime later her mother invited him to come to Holland to paint portraits, and an expected sojourn of three months was extended into eight years residence.

Echague began to paint in South America shortly afterwards. Since that time, he has made almost a yearly pilgrimage and has become the unofficial painter to the aristocracy of the Argentine.

His initial representation in the Carnegie International was a portrait of his daughter, Carmen, surrounded by her pets at his hacienda on the pampas of the Argentine.

In his portrait of the four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hunt, Alfred, Torrance, Roy, Jr., and Richard, which Echague has been painting in Pittsburgh for the last six weeks, he does the most notable work in child portraiture which he has yet attempted. This is the most important portrait of its kind painted in Pittsburgh in our generation.

PAINTS PORTRAITS HERE

The portrait of the Hunt children embodies an "xcellence which demands public exhibition, that all those interested in contemporary art may enjoy a difficult problem in composition, superbly solved.

Senor Echague has also painted a portrait of Mrs. Hunt in a sympathetic Spanish environment. The painting is splendid as a portrait and impersonally important as a pictorial composition.

The list of Senor Echague's honors is a long one, including the highest recognition in his own land. He is president of the National Association of Painters and Sculptors of Spain.

Senor Echague sails for Holland this week to execute a number of portrait commissions before he departs to Morocco, where he spends his holidays, drawing and painting the natives. Echague will probably have a special exhibition of his works on circuit throughout the museums of the United States next season.

Camera Question Box

Today's Question: Dr. Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University, says men are more willing early risers than women. Do you agree with him?

Robert Kleeb

ROBERT KLEEB, student: I disagree with Dr. Laird's statement saying that men are more willing early risers than women. There are some men who are willing early risers and some women, too. All in all it's about a fifty-fifty proposition, I believe.

Miss Hunter

ADELAIDE HUNTER, college student: I know several women who are willing early risers. We can't make a sweeping statement covering such a broad field. The sex of a person, to my mind, does not enter into the question. It is entirely left up to the individual.

Edwin Rapp

EDWIN RAPP, undergraduate: No. I don't agree with him. In my opinion the women are the best early risers. Men run around more at night than women do, so when it's time to get up in the morning the men are always the ones to turn over in bed for another hour's sleep.

Miss Sawders

RUTH SAWDERS, student: Dr. Laird may be right but I think he's going a bit far when he claims that men are more willing to rise early than women. I have three brothers who are not too easy to waken in the morning. It's nothing to worry about, though.

Paul Tobin

PAUL TOBIN, student: To me it seems that Dr. Laird is entirely wrong. I've lived in a fraternity for some time now and have noticed that you have a mighty tough time getting most of the fellows out of bed for early classes. Women can't be worse—it's not possible.

Miss Coster

HELENA COSTER, undergraduate: I am no authority on sleep but it appears to me as though Dr. Laird is not strictly correct when he makes such an assertion. When it comes to sleep I see no reason why men should be more willing risers than women.

STUDENTS HEAR FINAL SERMONS

More than 2,500 men and women who will be graduated this week from the University of Pittsburgh, Duquesne University and Carnegie Institute of Technology heard baccalaureate sermons yesterday. Pitt's service were held in Carnegie Music Hall yesterday morning. Duquesne services were held in St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday morning and last night the Tech students gathered in Carnegie Music Hall.

Bishop Herbert Welch, of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was the speaker at the University of Pittsburgh service. Dr. S. S. Linhart, secretary of the university, presided.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, presided at the Tech services and introduced the speaker, the Rev. R. I. Murray, chaplain of St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Coakley, of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, delivered the sermon for the Duquesne University students. A procession formed in front of the Catholic Boys' High School, a block away, and moved to the Cathedral.

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle was celebrant of the high mass.

WAIT 10 YEARS TO VISIT SONS' GRAVES

Picked Army Officers to Form Battlefield Escort; To Hold Special Services

A Pittsburgh mother, whose two sons fought side by side "Somewhere in France," awaits with eager anticipation her visit to the grave of the one who didn't come back.

She is Mrs. Charles Horne, of 125 Charles street, Knoxville, state president of the Service Star Legion, who will sail with several other Pittsburgh and Allegheny county Gold Star mothers July 23 on the S. S. George Washington from New York, as guests of the government on a tour of the American cemeteries in France.

WAITS 10 YEARS

For 10 years Mrs. Horne has awaited this chance. She has never deemed it right to bring back the body of her son, Raymond, of Company M, One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry, who died from wounds suffered in the fierce fighting at Fismette a short time before the Armistice was signed. He died a hero, she believes, and prefers letting him rest under the protection of the nation he helped to save.

Twelve years ago Raymond and his brother Edward enlisted. Both fought side by side throughout the greater part of the war. Edward came back. Raymond didn't.

Edward didn't know his brother had died in a Paris hospital until Mrs. Horne broke the news to him upon his return to the states. Uhlman-Horne Post, No. 456, American Legion of Knoxville, is named in Raymond's honor.

104 WILL SAIL

Fully 104 Gold Star mothers from Pittsburgh and Allegheny County are eligible for the trip, according to Mrs. Horne, but the exact number going has not yet been announced. Many will be from the Service Star Legion. The others will be mothers not affiliated with any organization.

Landing at Cherbourg, France, the delegation will be escorted to Paris and the battlefields and cemeteries by packed army officers. A wreath will be laid on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the Arc de Triomphe. Later special services will be held in the burial grounds visited.

Allegheny County has 18 chapters of the Service Star Legion. The state has 23. Formed from the Mothers of Democracy, organized during the World War, the organization now has a membership of 650. Many members will be automatically excluded from the trip to France, because their sons have been brought home. A replica of Edward's tombstone has been erected in the Horne family plot in South Side Cemetery.

Health Department Warns Against Dogs

Urging that dogs be confined to the premises or held under a leash when outside, the Department of Health, in its monthly paper issued yesterday advised that spring is the time when dogs are apt to contract diseases from other animals. "Do not tease or pet strange dogs, or allow children to do so," the paper stated.

In the morning, at noon and at night weddings take place all during the month of June and brides are wearing afternoon gowns quite often instead of the more romantic and traditional veil and satin gown.

This evening at 5:30 o'clock Anne King Scott, daughter of the J. King Scotts of Devon road becomes the bride of John H. Ricketson III, son of the junior John R. Ricketsons of Ridge avenue, North Side, in the home of the Scotts. Officiating is the Rev. Dilworth Lupton, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Cleveland. The home is decorated in spring flowers.

Anne is wearing a severely simple gown of white satin and a tulle veil with a coronet of pearls. She is carrying a sheaf of calla lilies. Her sister, Elizabeth Scott, who is her only attendant, is wearing a simple gown of coral pink lace and a hat of aquamarine blue straw. Her flowers are pink roses and lilies of the valley. James Verner Steele Jr. is serving as the best man.

There will be a reception after the ceremony at the Scott home, after which the youthful Ricketsons will leave on a wedding trip. They will live in Pittsburgh when they return.

From now until mid-July with its tropical warmth drives folks to seek coolness at the seashore, the lake district, or the mountains, weddings will be the predominating interest in the social world.

Eastern Wedding

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin with a pointed train and a veil of ivory tulle trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Harriet, like all the bridesmaids, wore a gown of delphinium blue georgette, fashioned with a full skirt, edged with tulle and with a tulle-edged shoulder cape, which formed brief sleeves. Her hat was of natural balibuntl, trimmed with delphinium blue grosgrain ribbon, and her flowers were tea roses, delphinium and baby's breath.

Pores, Oily Skin Had Me Frantic

Try this New Hollywood Recipe for a Beautiful Skin

Out in Hollywood they have a wonderful recipe for a lotion that quickly reduces large pores, removes blackheads and makes the skin nice and smooth.

The very minute you put it on the face it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and makes the skin smooth, good-looking and youthfully fresh. You'll notice, too, that the skin is not oily or disfigured with perspiration that streaks make-up.

If you want a smooth, soft, beautiful skin free from large pores, blackheads, crow's feet and oiliness, just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from your druggist and mix it with the juice of 2 lemons. Then you have a full quarter-pint of the finest lotion you have ever used. Try it.

Note: During the summer months this amazing lotion is indispensable to the outdoor girl. It keeps the skin smooth and free from freckles and guards against that leathery, aged-worn look caused by sun and wind.

River Fete Held by League

Grandpas and grandmas, not to mention mothers and fathers and other children of all growths, turned out, nearly 1,000 of them, for the river fete held Saturday by the Allegheny County League of Women Voters on the Greater Pittsburgh. The schedule of events went off as arranged by Mrs. Waldo Amos and her many committees.

There was fortune telling all afternoon with Mrs. Q. W. Hershey as the head seeress. A sleight of hand performance a Punch and Judy show and a fish pond claimed the special attention of the youngsters. Dancing in half-hour periods interspersed the other features which also included deck sports and the fashion show and a costume contest, which were the chief interests. The fashion show was put on through the courtesy of Gimbels and attracted the largest crowds, drawing even those who had ensconsed themselves in comfortable deck rockers for the afternoon. Some striking models in bathing costumes, afternoon and street frocks and evening wear were displayed by the comely young women.

The costume parade was led by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the league, in an old-fashioned dress with a train. Mr. Smith, as a caballero, brought up the rear. Among the prize winners were Mrs. A. H. Amsler as the sweetest lady, wearing an authentic Japanese outdoor costume; Mrs. Martha Purcell, for a totem pole (most original) costume; Mrs. Harvey H. Breckenridge, Mrs. L. J. George, Mary Wright, who wore her grandmother's wedding gown; Dorothy Oliver, Kennedy and Templeton Smith and Dorothy Demmler.

Mrs. Frank O. Graham entertained a party of 10 young people in honor of her daughter, Frances Graham. A special luncheon was served and there were lovely favors—bracelets for the girls and sleeve links for the boys. The guests included Phyllis Hardie, Jane McLean, Lois Hepner, Louise and John Musgrave, Freeman Ames, Stanley Harrison, Robert Colbaugh and Ernest Schmiser.

PARIS DISCOVERS NEW MANNER OF TYING SCARFS TO THE MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, JUNE 9.—The scarf again ties up with the current mode, and is to be found applied in divers ways to frocks of all types. It has been discovered that scarf trimming is the simplest, but most effective method of adding color, color contrast and animation to even the most simple of frocks. Bows with trailing ends vary the form of ornamentation, but such trimming has not the verve to be found in a smartly placed scarf. Bow-knots and scarfs are of course the result of the uncompromising line of the princess silhouette that simply cries out for something to soften the effect and bring a little bit of gaiety into a serious situation. The detached scarf is not so much seen here. When it is worn, it is generally part of a hat and scarf ensemble, of the type of which we have sent you sketches.

THE ENSEMBLE is still with us, but in various guises, as nearly every nice frock demands some kind of a little coat, rather than the long models in circulation last Spring and Summer. A long skirt and a long coat would give rather too heavy an effect for hot weather wear, while a short coat completes the costume just as well, and has the merit of being cool and not burdensome. The ensemble pictured here is an exceedingly good looking yet practical afternoon model from Maggy Rouff. It is of navy blue georgette, and the belted frock is worn with a flaring short jacket which dips in a curved line at the back. Double circular flounces start at the elbow and give a distinctive note to the sleeves. Fine pin tucks are used on both frock and jacket with considerable effect.

THE SAME MODISTE is responsible for the very delightful sport frock which consists of a pale blue crepe chemise frock, over which is worn a hand-knit sweater of fine silk and wool in several shades of blue. Appliqued on the front of the sweater, are two plaided silk scarf ends, which pass over the shoulders to be detached and knotted in back with long loose ends.

"Beauty Shampoo" in 10 minutes

Quickly, Easily, at a few cents cost—you can have a Real "Beauty Shampoo" that will give Your Hair a Loveliness, quite unobtainable by Ordinary Washing.

YOU CAN SAVE TIME, expense and inconvenience, by adopting this simple method of "beauty shampooing" which gives truly professional results at home.

The beauty of your hair, its sparkle . . . its gloss and lustre . . . depends, almost entirely, upon the way you shampoo it.

A thin, oily film, or coating, is constantly forming on the hair. If allowed to remain, it catches the dust and dirt—hides the life and lustre—and the hair then becomes dull and unattractive.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a glass or pitcher with a little warm water added, makes an abundance of . . . soft, rich, creamy lather . . . which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing with it every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Only thorough shampooing will . . . remove this film . . . and let the sparkle, and rich, natural . . . color tones . . . of the hair show.

Ordinary washing fails to satisfactorily remove this film, because—it does not clean the hair properly.

Besides—the hair cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali, in ordinary soaps, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why women, by the thousands, who value beautiful hair, are using Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. It cleanses so thoroughly; is so mild and so pure, that it cannot possibly injure, no matter how often you use it.

You will notice the difference in the appearance of your hair the very first time you use Mulsified, for it will feel so delightfully clean, and be so soft, silky, and fresh-looking.

Try a Mulsified "Beauty Shampoo" and just see how quickly it is done. See how easy your hair is to manage, and how lovely and alluring it will look. See it sparkle—with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store, or toilet goods counter, . . . anywhere in the world.

You too — on short notice, can have Hair that is Lovely and Alluring

MT. BAKER IS AN INSPIRING SCENIC AREA FOR VACATIONS

"National Recreation Area!" This government classification, applied only to regions of rare scenic charm, distinguishes Mt. Baker Forest, Washington. Almost as far northwest as you can go in the United States lies this 75,000-acre picture land of snowy peaks, mighty green-spired forests and gem-like lakes.

Visiting it on a Northern Pacific Railway tour you find great whispering forests of fir, rushing streams, glistening glaciers and trails winding far over mountains and meadows. Bear, deer and elk hide in the primeval forest or inquisitively venture forth.

Two miles high towers snow-capped Baker, once a volcano and still emitting sulphur fumes from its several craters above the clouds. Greater than Mt. Shuksan or its ten other attendant peaks, it was called the "Great White Watcher" by the Indians.

A Mt. Baker vacation calls out the explorer in you, yet along with exploration you enjoy such luxuries as room with private bath. Exploration trips can be made by visitors of all ages. And there are hikes to glaciers, fishing, mountain climbing, snow sports, bathing, boating and horseback riding. Even children have a safe, novel playground on Table Mountain glacier.

Mt. Baker Lodge chalet reaches out a welcome from its setting in Heather Meadows on the shore of Sunrise Lake. Lobby windows are your picture gallery of the mountains and in the evenings a gracious hostess directs the social program.

You can go to Mt. Baker in luxurious comfort on the Northern Pacific Railway — the route of 28 mountain ranges. Without additional cost you may have a free side trip to Vancouver, B. C., with stopover at Bellingham, Washington, for the Mt. Baker tour, and you can also enjoy a free side trip to Winnipeg, either on your way east or west via the Northern Pacific.

$113.01 buys a round-trip summer fare ticket from Pittsburgh to the Pacific Coast. Rates at lovely Mt. Baker Lodge are from $6.50 to $10.00 per day, American plan.

Akerson concluded by saying "no man ever filled the high office he now holds who had more patience, more calm and deliberate judgment, or any more conscientious desire to serve the people than has Herbert Hoover."

THE OFFICE WIFE

was a reporter on a tabloid and lived with his wife and babies in the Bronx. Jim had done well. He was a fine boy, his mother assured herself with justification, and if he had ever given her anxiety, well, boys will be boys, she admitted. She was not modern enough to admit also that girls will be girls.

She advised Kathleen, passing her on her way back to the kitchen: "Say nothing to your father yet; let him have his good hot supper."

Later they sat down to the filling meal of the average American family—a good cut of meat, scalloped potatoes, a canned vegetable, pie and coffee, bread, butter, pickles and jam.

"Sit still, mother; I'll bring in the dessert," Anne told her.

"And why should I be sitting still? Sure, you've had enough to do at the office this day without coming home and serving supper!" said Mrs. Murdock indignantly.

Murdock read his evening paper during the meal. Kathleen jumped up three or four times to twirl the dials of the radio and snatch some dance music from the compliant ether. As the melodies reached them from the dining room of a great hotel she tapped her slim feet and swayed her pretty shoulders while she ate.

"Quit weaving around like that!" her father ordered. "Must you be wasting your time dancing even at the table?"

"Is Ted coming tonigh.?" Mrs. Murdock asked Anne hastily.

"I think so. Why don't you wear your new foulard?" Anne asked her mother.

"Hush up with you!" Mrs. Murdock began, gratified, and Kathleen said:

"You can have the living room, Anne; I'm going to the movies with Laura and May. Dad, you can read your old paper in the kitchen. You know you like it better, anyway."

"Is that so?" But he smiled. "Where's my tonic, now?" he demanded, remembering his sacred custom.

The bottle found and the dose taken, he lighted his pipe and tilted back his chair, thumbs hooked into armpits.

"What's the news, girls?"

Anne said quietly, but her eyes danced, betraying her: "Miss Andrews is away on leave. I'm doing Mr. Eaton's work."

"Will she be coming back?" asked her mother keenly.

"He says so." Anne answered noncommittally.

"And how does Mr. Sanders take it?" her mother pursued.

"All right, but I'll have part of his work to do, too." Anne answered, and chuckled. Absurd how these important busy men grew to lean upon girls like herself—absurd, yet somehow significant!

Kathleen looked toward her mother and a lovely eyebrow made mute inquiry. Mrs. Murdock nodded, her eyes anxious.

"I've a job," announced Kathleen casually, "in the chorus of 'The Sky Girl.' Rehearsals begin tomorrow." She sat back and braced herself for the explosion.

U. S. GREATEST ELECTRIC USER

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP.)—A survey of the electric light and power industry throughout the world, issued by the investment banking firm of Pynchon & Co., and covering all nations, shows an annual estimated production of electricity of 300,000,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Of this volume the United States contributes an estimated 125 billion kilowatt hours, or one kilowatt hour for each 1¼ kilowatt hours generated by all other countries combined, equal to 41 per cent of the total.

Germany is second with an estimated output of 34,000,000 kilowatt hours, about 11 per cent. Canada comes third with more than 18,000,000,000 kilowatt hours, about 6 per cent. Great Britain and France each produce about 16,000,000,000 kilowatt hours annually.

RAIN KEEPS PIRATES IDLE

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Berger Baffles Hurlers. • Brame Soon to Pitch.
No Weak Spot Found. Wykoff Is Sprint King.
Trade Helps Dodgers. Gallant Fox Unrivaled.

ROOKIE DARK HORSE IN HOMER RACE

AS A GENERAL rule, by the time a newcomer in the major leagues has played once around the circuit the pitchers have discovered his batting weakness, if he has one. But according to Bill McKechnie, commanding the Boston Braves, the National League hurlers are still looking vainly for some defect in Walter Berger, whose home runs helped to beat the Pirates Saturday and yesterday. The flingers may make him look bad at one moment with a certain kind of pitch, but when they throw him another of the same kind he knocks it down town.

Walter Berger

The coast recruit is the slugging sensation of the year's crop of rookies. Forbes Field patrons saw him paste the pellet over the left field wall twice in one game last month against Larry French and Glenn Spencer, and he has been doing the same thing all around the loop. As a result, he's right up among the home run leaders with 17 round trippers to his credit, the darkest of dark horses in a race that was supposed to be exclusively for such select entries as Babe Ruth, Chuck Klein, Hack Wilson, Babe Herman, Jimmy Foxx and other swatsmiths of established merit.

REGARDLESS OF THE presence of such powerful starboard swingers as Rogers Hornsby, Hack Wilson, Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx, Chick Hafey, Dale Alexander and the rest, McKechnie makes the claim that Berger hits a ball harder and farther than any other right-hand hitter in the business. Moreover, he says that many veteran players of rival clubs have admitted to him that they are of the same opinion.

Bill says he can't explain Berger's tremendous power or long-distance driving any more than he can explain Ruth's home-run hitting. Walls takes a full swing, and misses a lot of balls by a wide margin, but he has all sorts of power in body, shoulders, arms and wrists and McKechnie concludes that he must have a better than average pair of eyes in addition. Bill says opposing pitchers have confessed to him that they have not been able to make any more headway against Berger's batting weakness, if one exists, than has been made toward stopping Ruth.

IT HAS JUST been learned how the Braves came to land such a prize as Berger when the best prospects in the Coast League usually are bagged by the stronger and richer clubs. His acquisition, it develops, was part of the deal that sent Third Baseman Lester Bell from Boston to the Cubs.

Bill McKechnie

Wally belonged to the Cub-owned Los Angeles club and under ordinary circumstances would have become a Bruin, but McKechnie would not turn Bell over to Chicago until the Cub management in addition to paying a healthy sum of money, consented to let him take Berger from Los Angeles. Joe McCarthy needed a third baseman more urgently than an outfielder, so he agreed. The Braves had to give Los Angeles some playing timber in exchange, but McKechnie has had no cause to regret his bargain.

ONE FACTOR THAT helped to lift the Brooklyn club to the National League leadership after five consecutive years in sixth place was the smart trade that Wilbert Robinson swung with Dan Howley last winter whereby the Dodgers obtained Adolfo Luque in exchange for Douglas McWeeny. The Cuban couldn't win for Cincinnati, but since being transferred to Brooklyn he appears to have regained his old effectiveness to such an extent that he is now the leading pitcher of the National League with a record of six games won without a defeat.

LUQUE'S CLASSY PERFORMANCE of yesterday, in which he shut out the Cubs with only four hits, topped a string of five previous successes in which he defeated the Phillies twice, and the Giants, Braves and Reds once each. He has played no small part in making pennant bidders of the Robins.

Meanwhile McWeeny has been just about a total loss to the Reds. He has pitched only two games to a decision for the Reds and lost both of them, St. Louis being the opposing club on each occasion. It looks as if Howley got even less out of that trade in comparison with what he gave up than he received in playing material in the two deals he made with John McGraw.

WHEN THE PIRATES were knocked off in Boston again yesterday it marked their ninth defeat in the last 13 games, and as a result of the Sunday reverse they fell into the second division by a single point and dropped below the .500 mark for the first time this year.

Ervin Brame

The appearance of Ervin Brame as a pinch-hitter offers some little hope, as it may mean that Brame will be able to resume pitching this week. That may have the effect of bracing up the Bucs a bit, as Brame has been the only consistent winner on the staff and had won four games in succession when illness put him out of action.

SOME NOTEWORTHY HAPPENINGS in the major leagues yesterday: A five-run rally by the Browns against the Yanks in the eighth inning gave Pitcher Sam Gray his first victory of the season after he had lost nine games in a row. The Giants hung up their eighth straight win. The Cardinals were beaten for the twelfth time in their last 13 games, following a streak in which they won 17 out of 18. The Senators fell for the seventh time in their last nine engagements. The Indians copped their tenth decision in their last 13 starts. Wes Ferrell pitched his ninth victory for the Indians against four defeats and leads the hurlers of both girdles in number of games won. Waite Hoyt, in a game cut to six innings by rain, pitched a 1-to-0 victory over the Red Sox in his first start for the Tigers. The Red Sox became the first club of the year to be shut out twice in succession. Ted Lyons suffered his fourth straight defeat after winning seven games in succession. The Athletics scored their twelfth win in their last 14 bouts. Charley Engle went hitless after batting safely in 12 consecutive contests. Walter Berger poled his seventeenth homer.

THOUGH EDDIE TOLAN, Michigan sprinter, was officially recognized not long ago by the International Amateur Athletic Federation as the holder of the world sprinting record of 9.4 seconds for 100 yards, the little Negro no longer occupies the throne. There can no longer be any doubt that first place among all the sprinters of the day belongs to Frank Wykoff, of Southern California.

Wykoff's May feat of running the century in 9.4 seconds was repeated in Chicago last Saturday, and again he did it without starting blocks, and moreover he defeated in competition a field that included not only Tolan, but such other stars as George Simpson, Edwin Toppino, Claude Bracey and Cy Leland. A week earlier he beat Hector Dyer and Tolan. All of which just about puts him in a class of his own.

TO WHAT EXTENT the success is due to the horse and to what extent it is due to the rider may be open to conjecture, but there is no doubt that as a combination Gallant Fox and Earl Sande are so far superior to all rivals on the American turf this year as to leave no room for argument.

As a 2-year-old, Gallant Fox was defeated handily by Whichone

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

As if it hasn't had enough grief already this season with only one money-maker in its first three boxing shows and a complete bloomer in its attempt to revive wrestling, last week the Meyers Bowl management which puts on an all-star card in its North Braddock arena tonight ran into more trouble yesterday when it developed that Jackie Rodgers, local Negro knockout featherweight star, has a bad side and can't go through with his scheduled match with Johnny Datto, the hard-hitting Filipino of Cleveland, in its main bout next Monday night.

Jackie Rodgers

Rodgers not only has been forced to call off this bout but also one carded for tonight at Wheeling with Tony Leone of Dover, O. The Bowl is casting about for a substitute opponent for Rodgers against Datto, but today had not yet made a connection. An offer was made to Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, who has boxed Rodgers three times and put on such a thriller with Jackie at Motor Square Garden recently that the fans have been clamoring for another rematch, but Jimmy Conrad, manager of Dunn, is taking plenty of time to think over the proposition. Dunn also was asked last night to sub against Leone at Wheeling, but declined because of the short notice.

DUNN SOUGHT AS SUB

Dunn substituted for Rodgers against Heine Hart at the Garden during the indoor season and won easily, only to find himself getting the run-around later until h finally managed to get another crack at Rodgers and then had the fans insisting at the finish that he had won, although the decision went to Rodgers. Conrad doesn't like the idea of having Dunn cast in the role of an understudy for Rodgers to be called upon only when the latter is unable to go through with matches.

A conference is slated for today at which something may be accomplished in the way of straightening out the situation. There is no doubt that Dunn would prove a suitable substitute against Datto insofar as the fans are concerned.

According to James (Red) Mason, who, with Johnny Deutsch, manages Rodgers, Jackie, who has been training at St. Michael, near Johnstown, called up on Saturday and complained of a pain in his left side which caused him to quit training for the Leone match. He was brought to Pittsburgh and examined by Dr. G. C. Weil, in Mercy Hospital, and the latter declared that no ribs were broken, but there were adhesions, and advised a layoff from training of several weeks. Meanwhile Jackie will have to return to the hospital for daily treatments.

INJURED IN FALL

Rodgers suffered the injuries in a fall prior to his recent bout with Jimmy Dale, of Indianapolis, at Hickey Park. He knocked out Dale in two rounds, crushing his ribs with his right hand punches. However, after the bout he himself had to go to the West Penn Hospital, where his own ribs were strapped with adhesive tape. It was when he was working out with Don Frazier at St. Michael that the serious nature of the injuries became evident.

Three 10-round bouts and a six-rounder make up the program at the Bowl tonight. In the main event, Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. Y., boxes Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., another favorite here. Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, meets Harry (Kid) Brown, of Philadelphia, in the semi-final, and Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, is in with Bobby Young, of Duquesne and Detroit, in the first 10-rounder. Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, meets Don Davis, of Youngstown, in the six-round opener.

Phil Goldstein and Andy Andrucci, local lightweight rivals, meet again in the main bout at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, tonight. Goldstein will be out to avenge a defeat by Andrucci at the Monaco Temple recently. Tommy Loughran and Ernie Schaaf meet for the third time

ANSWERS TO RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: A SALMON SWAM 1,300 MILES—The curious migratory habits of the salmon are a source of eternal wonder to the ichthyologist. This particular salmon was tagged and released by the Bureau of Fisheries south of the Alaskan peninsula on July 4, 1923. On August 18 of the same year it was caught in the river Pankara on the Eastern Shores of Kamchatka, in far away Siberia, and was identified by the mark of the United States Bureau of Fisheries and its number. PRO TOURNEY CARDED TODAY

Three golf tournaments are on the program for today. Professionals from throughout the Tri-State district are playing morning and afternoon at the Greensburg Country Club, where Perry Del Vecchio Day is being celebrated. Two organizations are staging one-day tournaments at the Wildwood Country Club, the Hotel Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association and the National Linen Supply Golf Association, cavorting the beautiful links of the Wildwood Country Club this afternoon.

The professionals are staging a closed pro event this morning, the contesting being at 18 holes medal play for a number of substantial money prizes. Needless to say, Del Vecchio is at his best on his home course and rates a strong favorite to win.

This afternoon amateur members of the Greensburg Country Club will team with the visiting professionals in a best ball pro-amateur competition, and tonight they will gather about the festive board to make merry.

Braves Reported Angling for Hargreaves

By Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 9.—Bill McKechnie, manager of the Braves, admitted this morning that he had at least one deal in the making, although Bill did not care to disclose the identity of the team with which he was negotiating.

There was a well-defined rumor in the camp of the Pirates today to the effect that McKechnie was angling for the services of Catcher Charley Hargreaves. It was said also that McKechnie seeks Outfielder Hendrick of the Robins.

The clubs have only one week in which to engineer deals within the league.

Nurmi Sets World Six-Mile Record

LONDON, June 9 (AP).—Paavo Nurmi, the famous Flying Finn, who holds more track records than any other man, smashed the world mark for the six-mile run in a race at Stamford Bridge today. The great Finn covered the distance in 29 minutes 36 3-5 seconds, as compared with the record of 29-59 2-5, set by Alfred Schrubb, of England, which has stood since 1904.

Running in a handicap event, Nurmi finished third behind opponents to whom he had conceded more than three minutes' start.

MOGULS MEET ON MONDAY

The annual mid-season meeting of the magnates of the National League has been called by President John A. Heydler for next Monday in New York, according to official notice received by President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club.

The session will be held for the transaction of general business and a discussion of any important matters that may have arisen since the moguls last convened in February.

BOSTON, June 9. The Pirates-Braves series was brought to an abrupt close here today when the final game of the set, scheduled for this afternoon, was postponed because of rain.

The Bucs this afternoon left for New York, where they will open a series with the Giants tomorrow.

Below the .500 mark for the first time this season, the Corsairs realize that they must soon show a spurt if they are to remain in the pennant race. After his team had taken a 10-6 defeat yesterday at the hands of the Braves, Manager Ens announced a change in his lineup. Ens will put Dick Bartell back at his shortstop post tomorrow and it is likely that Paul Waner will be dropped to the third position in the batting order. Jess Petty, who was slated to pitch today, probably will draw the slab assignment in the series opener with the Giants.

EIGHT-RUN INNING

Larry French suffered a bad fielding lapse in the second inning of yesterday's contest. Although he was charged with no errors, Larry made two bad slips that set the stage for an eight-run inning, the lefthander being among the missing before the round was completed.

Berger was on first with none out in the second when Chatham bunted. French was trying to watch both runners for a possible play at second as he reached for the tap. He did not pick up the ball cleanly and his belated throw to first was so poor that Suhr could not hold it in one hand. Gus was charged with an error which should have been given Larry.

LARRY'S TOSS LATE

A clean hit and a scratch single through French followed and then Maguire hit to French who had several plays in front of him but wound up with a throw to third with the idea of boxing Chatham off that bag. The throw was late and the bases were filled.

French then walked Pitcher Harry Seibold with bases filled and Manager Ens yanked him in favor of Glenn Spencer. Spencer retired two batters without allow-

Nick Altrock Says:

CLEVELAND, June 9.—I see they are still slapping out home runs at the rate of a couple of dozen a day. I can remember when Frank Baker was called the home run king for making 12 of them in a season. He would be waived out of the league for that today. In another year fans will be demanding rain checks unless they see a home run in the first four and a half innings. There is such an epidemic of circuit clouts that when a fellow sits in the bleachers he is taking a chance of a fractured skull. By 1935 the magnates will be paying $80,000 a year to a guy that can lay down a bunt.

SHARKEY TO RELY ON LEFT IN TITLE BOUT

JACK FINISHES HARD TRAINING TOMORROW

By JACK SHARKEY,
American Heavyweight Champion.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 9.—Two more days and my strenuous training for my 15-round world heavyweight battle with Max Schmeling in New York on Thursday night will be over.

Jack Sharkey

I shall box today and again tomorrow. Then for some light exercises and I shall take things easy until I start trading blows with the German Demipsey.

I boxed five rounds during my Sunday workout, three with Johnny Grosso and a round each with Paul Cavalier and King Solomon. During my boxing drill I devoted a great deal of my time to speeding up on my left hand attack. This is the duke which will bring about the defeat of Schmeling.

TO DEPEND ON LEFT

Max relies upon his right hand to win. This was the sock that enabled him to stop Johnny Risko and to later beat Paulino. The history of the boxing game proves that a good left hand will always beat a right hand shot. Max may also find me beating him to his right hand punch with a right hand. It was a right hand sock that enabled me to win from Loughran. It was also my right which had the great Dempsey on the verge of a knockout in the first round of our bout three years ago.

My left hand, however, will be my chief weapon against Schmeling. The latter has a fair left duke, but I do not believe he will be able to match left hands with me.

GLAD GRIND IS OVER

It is a relief that the long training grind is almost over. I have been getting ready for Schmeling for six weeks and will be tickled when the sound of the gong sends me into action Thursday night.

After all, the fight is the thing. I have been getting ready for the big test for a long time and now am anxious to see the big punches fly.

I have been asked what my plans are for after the bout. I have not made any extensive plans yet. I shall wait until I get Schmeling out of the way. The morning after the bout, Mrs. Sharkey and myself will start over the road for Boston. We want to get back home with our three youngsters as quickly as possible.

SHH! SECRET STUFF!

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 9.—Max Schmeling has been spoofing all along with his pretense of doing no roadwork and looking terrible in his workouts before the scribes and fans.

That's the story that was circulated here today. It is alleged that he has been running 12 miles at sun-up every morning and boxing in secret, also in the mornings, at the camp of one Howard Vine, a wealthy young sportsman, right across the Pennsylvania state line.

Believe it or not, that's what they're saying today. And perhaps Maxie will look better against Sharkey than he has in his wishy-washy workouts against a lot of dum dum sparring partners.

SECTION I STARS TRIUMPH OVER OLIVER HIGH IN PLAYOFF SERIES FOR TITLE

For the fourth year in succession, Schenley High School's baseball stars have won the local scholastic championship. The latest conquest came through the defeat of Oliver High, champion of Section II, in the three-game playoff series staged on the Forbes Field neutral battleground. Schenley rallied after losing the first game, 5-3, to win the second, 9-7, and then clinch the honors with an 11-1 walkaway in the rubber tilt. Pictured in the group are (left to right) Back row—Coach Kortner, Wettack, Friedman, Mihm, McKee, Haverty, Moran, Douglas and Landau. Middle row—Topal, Fibus, Studnicki, Birch, Renno, Schilit, Ruben and Mays. Front row—Owens, Presto, Powell, Stratton and Kissock.

RACE MECHANIC MEETS DEATH

DETROIT, June 9.—(AP)—Bill Berry, mechanic for C. C. McKenzie, Philadelphia automobile race driver, was killed yesterday afternoon at the Michigan State Fair grounds track.

McKenzie himself was injured critically and was taken to a hospital unconscious.

McKenzie's car was the only one on the track. He was trying to qualify for a 100-mile championship race this afternoon. Going out of control, the car turned over and crashed through the fence around the oval.

The race had been postponed from today because of rain and cold weather.

at the Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia. Tommy won the first battle in Boston, but dropped a disputed decision in the second clash, in Philadelphia, recently.

The Hickey Park management made a good move when it brought forward its show for this week from Thursday to Wednesday night to avoid conflict with the radio broadcast for the Sharkey-Schmeling bout on Thursday. Battling Gizzy boxes Steve O'Malley in the windup and Mickey Solomen and Jackie Wilson, whose first meeting at the Moose Temple saw both on the floor, are in the eight-round semi-final. U. S. Carpentier meets Muscle Scholes again and Jimmy Thomas is in with Mose Butch to complete the card.

ing a run but George Sisler nicked him for a single and Berger came through with his seventeenth homer of the season. The upshot of the round was eight tallies.

The Braves scored two more tallies on Spencer in the third before Leon Chagnon stopped them.

Seibold blanked the Buccos on one hit for six rounds but the Pirates all but shelled him off the hill in the seventh when they scored six runs on six clean hits, a walk, a sacrifice and an error.

Sport Vignettes

Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech in 1928, will be graduated from his five-year course at the local institution this week and will go to his home in Akron, where he will enter the employ of an electrical motor manufacturing concern . . . . And he studied architecture, his father being in that business! . . . . Harpster will be back this way in the fall, when he will take up his duties as head coach at Geneva College, which, he reports, will play most of its home games on Friday nights to avoid conflict with the many scholastic features carded in the Beaver valley each Saturday afternoon . . . . This night football craze, inaugurated by the Dukes in these parts last fall, is going to spread far and wide . . . . Now that he has added the rich Belmont Stakes to his list of easy winnings, Gallant Fox would appear to have qualified at least for our work horse parade next year . . . . Another reason why James (Red) Mason, dean of local boxing managers, likes Jack Sharkey to beat Max Schmeling next Thursday night is because the former gob always has been a clean-living man, proud of his family and his home life . . . . Upwards of 500 Pittsburghers will sit in on the Sharkey-Schmeling title thing, not the least of whom will be Jack Herron, president of City Council, and his friend, Harry Neaman, an inveterate fistic first nighter, both of whom like Sharkey to win . . . . Others include Duffy J. Halley, the realtor; Attorney James F. Callahan, A. W. McMillan and Fritz Forschhheimer . . . . They're all good Sharkey men and true . . . . George Jaffe also will go over with a party . . . . Bill Shragen, the demon sports telegrapher, who knows a left hook from roadwork, opines it will be Sharkey—and how! . . . . Although he now is the National Intercollegiate quarter-mile champion, Pete Bowen still can't make us take back what we said in the first place when we began to kid him about track sports . . . . Are people getting smart these days, or is it just a coincidence that they didn't go in for the recent turtle races at Duquesne Garden and the rassling show at the Meyers Bowl? . . . . The alleged world wrestling title has been loaned to Jim Londos for a spell, via, Dick Shikat, if that is of any interest to anybody . . . . The Pennsylvania Athletic Commission is conspicuous in that it is the only boxing body in the world that refuses to recognize the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling bout this week as the heavyweight champion of the world . . . . It foolishly sticks by its guns and insists that it will not recognize any man as champion until he has eliminated George Godfrey, the so-called Black Menace, whom it once repudiated and who long ago has passed his peak and will be the next victim of Primo Carnera, in Philadelphia, June 23 . . . . Or is this merely ballyhoo for the Carnera-Godfrey bout? And why is it that K. O. Christner, like all of Carnera's other knockout victims, was lying face downward, with his gloves covering his head, when he was photographed in the role of a knockout victim in Detroit the other night? . . . . Both Johnny Deutsch and Jackie Rodgers are on the Sharkey bandwagon.—HARRY KECK.

Armentrout Joins Grid Hospital List

Another Pittsburgh college football star has gone under the surgeon's knife. The latest addition to the 1930 crop of convalescent footballers is the genial Murray Armentrout, Carnegie Tech's dashing halfback star, who had his appendix removed Friday night at the Presbyterian Hospital.

Armentrout was forced to pass up spring football practice because of an ailing condition. He is getting along in fine shape.

SCHOOL ENTRY DATE SET

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

With the entries for the third annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur golf tourney for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, slated to close with the Golf Tournament Editor on July 2, additional closing dates for the two team competitions to be held in conjunction with the tournaments have been set.

Preparatory and high school teams of four men each, through their physical directors, coaches or captains, must name their personnel on or before Monday, June 30. This means that all contestants in the tourney must be on hand well in advance of the final closing of the lists so that the players on the teams may be properly investigated; it is not the purpose of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to permit any boy to play who is more than 19 years of age or who does not hold an amateur standing.

CADDIES MUST QUALIFY

Club caddy teams which are to compete in the tournament as teams, and the four other boys who will play for themselves in the event, must be properly qualified if their club is within 20 miles of Pittsburgh, on or before July 3. Caddies who do not score low enough to attain one of the eight places allotted each club will not be permitted to enter the competition as individuals. Bag-carriers at those clubs more than 20 miles from Pittsburgh, where interest does not rate a preliminary qualifying test, will be accepted as individuals in the tournament.

Furthermore, caddies who have won prizes in the first two tournaments, and who are still within the age and amateur requirements, will be permitted to enter the tournament without preliminary qualifying. Amateurs who have won prizes in the past and who have not been caddies can enter through the usual channel, of course.

OPEN TO AMATEURS

The William Randolph Hearst tourney this year is open to all amateur golfers 19 years of age and under not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades, that includes boys who are caddying at this time who have not reached their eighteenth birthday. There is no entry fee whatsoever.

Get that entry blank of yours in NOW! Don't wait until tomorrow—you may wait too long, and be left outside looking in.

SIX CHAMPIONS RETAIN N. C. A. A. LAURELS

KRENZ, WARNE WIN; BOWEN CROWNED

By JESS CARVER

There were [illegible] happen[illegible] National [illegible]

1—Wykoff's [illegible] and the dethroning of Simpson.

3—Outjumping of Ed Hamm, George Tech, by Ed Gordon, of Iowa.

SIX CHAMPS REPEAT

All in all only six of the 1929 N. C. A. A. champions who were competing this year survived the rigors of a very tough two days of competition and lasted to be crowned again at 30 leaders. Simpson after being toppled in the hundred came back very nicely to retain his laurels in the furlong. Ozzie Martin, of Purdue, remained on top in the 880. Steve Anderson, of Washington gave up his title in the low hurdles to annex the highs. Harold Rothert, of Stanford, won the shot once again and Eddie Gordon, the boy they didn't think could outjump Ed Hamm, with a furious leg, in the final kept his name from being erased from opposite the broad jump.

BOWEN LANDS TITLE

It was fine that Pete Bowen should end his brilliant career by winning a national title. Pete had been runner-up [illegible] all season, but he came into his own with a relegation battling in the best time in the trials on Friday (0:48.6) and then clicking off a pip of a 48 flat in the finals. Walters, the defending champion, finished in exactly the same spot that Bowen [illegible] a year ago, third.

Len Fineman, of Geneva, while he did not win, [illegible] the javelin out-heaved the defending champ, Jesse Mortensen, of Southern California (who scored a touchdown against Pitt incidentally last New Year's) to take second, and in the doing set a new record for tri-state district athletes.

ALL DASHERS BEATEN

With the defeat of Simpson in the hundred went the last of the dash men who previously boasted undefeated records for the year. Wykoff, the wunnah was beaten early in the year in a dual meet by Hec Dyer, of Stanford. Tolan lost to Simpson. Metz was also beaten by Simpson and Bracey and Leland defeated each other.

Tommy Warne, of Northwestern, who won the pole vault in this year's meet might be classed as a repeater for he tied for honors a year ago with Ward Edmonds, Stanford's classic vaulter. Edmonds did not compete this year.

Just as a hint as to the degree of toughness of the discus competition, did you notice where the great Rothert finished? Fifth and when you find the husky Harold that far down in the lists, you find the lists pretty tough.

Babe Ruth Stresses Importance Of Catcher Blocking Plate

MAC IN PERFECT POSITION FOR BLOCKING AND READY TO "RIDE RUNNER IN" IF HE SLIDES
BABE
JOE ABOUT TO SLIDE HEAD FIRST WHICH IS BAD. GO IN FEET FIRST AND TRY TO HOOK PLATE WITH TOE.
MAC

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

Mac was catching. Joe was on third base with the tieing run.

"Now," I said, "the hitter lifts a fly to right field. What are you going to do?"

"I'll come home in a hurry," said Joe.

"And if they get me that ball in time I'll tag him on the whiskers," Mac promised.

"All right," I said. "Let's see you do it."

The picture shows the result. Mac lived up to his agreement. He's ready to tag the lagging Joe looks like a wooden soldier instead of a base runner.

Let's take Mac first. Notice that before the throw in front of the plate and in anticipation to block the runner completely. No runner could get past him without being tagged out and Mac is in position to throw himself on the runner if he attempts to slide. In other words he can "ride the runner in" so effectively that even a blind umpire wouldn't have any trouble calling the play.

Always, in throwing to the plate it is important to make the throw so that the catcher can take the ball in front of the plate. A catcher, you know, with all his pads, can block off a lot better than the average baseman. He doesn't have to worry much about spikes.

Now about Joe. A good baserunner instead of being upright would have started his slide about where Joe is in the picture. And he wouldn't slide head-first as Joe is about to go. He would go in feet first, throwing himself sideways and trying to hook that bag with his toe as he went in. The head-first slide is funny to watch, but it's no good in baseball any more. Come in feet first always. Not only do you have a better chance to avoid being tagged, but in case of a dropped ball or a wild throw you're in better position to scramble to your feet and keep going.

One of the most important duties of any catcher is blocking runners who attempt to score. If they reach first or second or third it's bad enough, but remember home plate is the last chance. If they get by you there it's a run. If you're a good catcher you always meet them down the line if possible. You block that plate completely and you're not afraid to "ride 'em in" if you get the chance.

Mac is in perfect position for blocking in this picture after a perfect throw. Study it and study his form. That's better than all the things I could tell you in words.

PAIRINGS MADE FOR GROGAN CUP PLAY

Golfers of the Shannopin and Highland Country clubs will resume links warfare for the Grogan cup emblematic of golf supremacy between the two organizations at Shannopin at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Highland won the cup last year and gained a big lead in the first half of the competition this season. Wednesday's play will conclude the Grogan cup battling for this summer.

Although the players will tee off in foursomes each foursome will provide two individual battles, players named first from each club being opposed and players named second likewise being foes. The pairings and starting times follow:

SAINTS RESIGN CITY LEAGUE FRANCHISE

By TOM BIRKS

The St. John's team of the City League, will not be a member of that loop when the second half campaign starts at the end of the month. This became known yesterday when Manager Jack Walsh, of the Lawrenceville club, sent President Harry Yers official notice that his club was through when the first half finishes.

While many people feel that other matters might have been in Manager Walsh's mind when the decision was made, poor support by the fans was given as the reason for the dropping from the circuit.

St. John's was one of the oldest members of the league and the league will suffer a loss by the passing of the Sullivan Field aggregation. Last evening some Lawrenceville sportsmen approached Manager Walsh with an idea of taking over the club and operating it under a new name. However, since the official resignation is now in the hands of the league executives the league itself must decide what becomes of the franchise.

GRAYS WIN PAIR

The Homestead Grays took both ends of yesterday's double-header with the crack Memphis team in Sharon, winning by scores of 6 to 1 and 13 to 3. St. Johns slipped W. O. W. in the City League by 8 to 2 score. In the West Penn, Wilmerding downed Universal 9 to 6.

In an independent tussle W. O. W. won over the Soho Traders, 13 to 4. Other games saw Posterville downing the N. S. Civics, 13-3; Raynestos winning over St. John's Lyceum, 10-7; N. Versailles defeating Trafford 8-5; Gimbels defeating Allison Park, 11-7; N. S. Elks downing Kokomos, 7-6; Lineys winning over Capullini, 12-11; Morocco defeating Stowe Indies, 4-3; Sunset defeating the Option Club, 8-2 and Banksville defeating Kovals, 2-1.

P. T. A. NAMES M'CAHILL REF

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

David I. McCahill, Pittsburgh tennis devotee and horseman, has been named official referee of the forty-second annual Western Pennsylvania net championships, slated to get under way on the clay courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club on June 21 a week from next Saturday. This announcement was forthcoming yesterday from Chairman Ed Beitz of the tournament committee.

Beitz at the same time stated that J. Howard Moore, former Pittsburgh Tennis Association president, will serve as chairman of the Umpires Committee at the district meeting that Paul Dell' Hirks, Edgewood ace and former Princeton star, has been appointed head of the prize committee with Frank Smith, also of Edgewood, and Charles Lyon, of West Penn Power, as assistants, and that Jack Beatty, ex-Carnegie Tech luminary and present Stanton Heights captain, will have charge of entertainment with the able help of H. Vernon Porter and Bill Spindler, likewise of the Stantonians.

SERVED IN '25, '29

McCahill served as referee of the 1925 and 1929 tourneys. In the former event he was called upon for decision in the Dave O'Loughlin-Jimmy O'Connor final wherein O'Loughlin was seized with leg cramps while leading two sets to one and 6-5 in the fourth frame. O'Connor, it will be recalled, generously and positively refused to accept the title by default, though technically it was his by that medium. The difficult problem here arising was solved tactfully by McCahill who decreed that Jimmy's wishes in the matter would be respected, but only upon the condition that the entire match be played over.

McCahill last year donated the McCahill Cup, symbolic of the West Penn men's singles title. The trophy is now in the possession of Byron Baur, Erie luminary who needs two more legs upon it for permanent ownership.

LOCALS PLAY ABROAD

Several racqueters from the Pittsburgh sector will plunge into intensive practice this week for important tussles abroad. Dave O'Loughlin, Pitt ace, will devote himself to grass cavorting in preparation for the Delaware State championship beginning at Wilmington next Monday and for the National Intercollegiates at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, Pa., the week of June 23. Eddie Jacobs, Panther captain, and Irving Goodman, also of the Blue and Gold, left last evening for Baltimore where today they will swing into action along with the University of California squad and a flock of other net notables in the Maryland State Championships.

Meanwhile other Pittsburghers will prime for the United States Inter-City doubles and the Ohio State championships getting under way at the Cleveland Tennis and Racquet Club just seven days hence. It is possible that Drs. Billy McElroy and John O'Loughlin will make the Forest City trip as Pittsburgh representatives in the Inter-City dual jousting. Billy O'Loughlin, Pitt Freshman top man, Sam Keller, former Duke varsity captain, Austin Famariss, flashy College avenue southpaw, and Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A., will likewise jaunt to Cleveland.

in 1929, but the way the former turned the tables in the Belmont Stakes last Saturday left no doubt as to the country's greatest 3-year-old of 1930. In turning into a mere procession what had promised to be one of the closest speed duels in history, William Woodward's remarkable horse and his equally remarkable jockey clearly demonstrated themselves to be the greatest racing combination of the present day.

William Woodward

NOT ONLY HAVE Gallant Fox and Sande equaled the 1919 feat of Sir Barton and Johnny Loftus, the only other horse and jockey ever to win the Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes, but they are likely to make even a greater record for there is nothing in sight to stop them in the American Derby, American Classic or any other possible starts, whereas Sir Barton was later defeated by Man o' War. Gallant Fox is also in a position to smash all American money-earning turf records before he closes his racing career, for last Saturday's winnings of $66,040 made him one of only eight horses that have ever earned $200,000 or more in this country, put him seventh on the list and within possible reaching distance of the top mark of $313,639, set By Zev. Gallant Fox has won $203,730, and has a good chance eventually to pass Zev's total. The only other horses ever to win $200,000 or more in America were Display, $256,376; Exterminator, $252,596; Man o' War, $249,465; Sarazen, $225,000; Blue Larkspur, $220,420, and Crusader, $203,261.

How Financial Horoscope Is Read by Banker

—By B. C. FORBES—

HERE IS HOW one of the foremost bankers in America reads the financial horoscope:

"Money rates will fall further. The supply of call money now is at least equal to the demand and will soon exceed the demand. Time rates have already weakened but will decline further. So will commercial paper rates.

The Federal Reserve Board will continue its easy-money policy. It naturally is anxious to do everything possible to co-operate in bringing about revival of business activity.

"The impending great ease in money will stimulate foreign offerings of securities here. I am taking it for granted that the German reparation issue here will be a distinct success. We already have firm applications for more than we expect to be allotted, and I understand other institutions and firms are having a similar experience. I don't expect the offering price to be higher than 94; it may prove to be a trifle lower. Extensive financing here by European and other countries will have a stimulating influence on purchases of American products. This influence, with other influences, may be sufficient to start a decisive forward movement in industry here.

"I expect marked improvement in the bond market, starting almost immediately. There will be a vast amount of money looking for employment. Money burns holes in the pockets of an institution just as readily as in the pockets of an individual. Therefore, you will see a lot of institutional buying of bonds.

"The changing of the whole complexion of the bond market stands a chance of starting the stock market on an upward course. The American people, as a whole, are still more stock-minded than bond-minded. I don't believe it would take much of an advance to whet the public's appetite for stocks. While I don't say it is exactly a probability, I do feel it is possible that once the stock market heads upward, we will witness very animated speculation indeed, with a very substantial rise in good stocks above their present levels. By the end of the year we may look back upon the prices now current and kick ourselves for having been such fools as not to load up.

"Pessimism is altogether too rife. One of my friends confided to me the other day that he looked for years of poor times, not only here but practically all over the world. I can't share that view at all. This country is not built that way. We have become too rich, we have too many resources, we have too much energy and too vigorous a spirit of enterprise to stay pessimistic or static very long. Our conditions now are thoroughly sound. Give us reasonably good agricultural conditions and you will see an entire change in sentiment and in the trend here.

"Mind you, it is the truth that no improvement worth speaking about has yet actually set in. Industry and trade in general haven't done better. I should say than hold their own lately. And it may be that the summer months will not bring any marked betterment in business.

"But, looking beyond the summer months, I can't take a gloomy view either of business or of securities."

JUNE HASN'T ONE better than mark time. Mild gains have been offset by mild recessions. Some consolation can be derived from the fact that the downswing in commodity prices appears to have been fairly well checked. The principal cereal crops show little change for the week. Cotton has moved irregularly but not sharply downward. Copper has been firmly maintained at the 13-cent quotation. The week did bring new low prices for rubber, iron, steel billets, tin, coffee, sugar, beef, certain cotton goods and silk. But in few instances were the changes at all drastic.

The feeling is spreading that the bottom has either been already touched or is very near.

STOCKS CREPT downward every day but one and finished the week with an average loss of about 5 per cent. The decline gathered momentum during the second half of the week. It is perhaps significant, however, that bear raids no longer precipitate any considerable public liquidation.

The writer still believes that substantially higher prices will be seen for good stocks before the year ends.

Blind Man Starts On 1,500-Mile Walk

AKRON, O.—(INS.)—A blind man and a friend, who is in poor health, have started on a 1,500-mile walking trip to Miami, Fla., where they expect to live next winter. The two men took along a large supply of toy balloons which they expect to sell to pay their expenses.

I. D. Lambert, who has conducted a newspaper station in downtown Akron for several years, is the blind man. His friend is Harry Menefee, who has his sight, but is in such poor health that he cannot secure permanent employment.

COURAGE GREAT NEED TO HELP BUSINESS

Fewer Forecasts and More Initiative Urged; Season Factors Are Favorable

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The new pessimism, which has of late been reflected at the stock ticker, is as highly emotional and as unreasonable as the inflated optimism which was in vogue a year ago.

The speculative weakness has been synchronized with the different hopes of a substantial trade revival. Many who had expected a significant turn this spring are now talking of better business in the autumn and those who had originally predicted the return of prosperity in the fall are inclined to think conditions may not really be bright until the spring.

ENTERPRISE NEEDED

As a people, we are making a fetish of forecasting. What the country needs is a moratorium on fortune telling and a revival of the spirit of enterprise.

Prosperity in the last analysis is the sum total of the fruitful activities of courageous business men who have the initiative to go ahead and do things. From this level, it seems apparent that the next major move in business when it comes will be upward.

Accordingly, enterprises will in all probability be operating under the advantages of a rising, not a falling market. Seasonal factors are likely to make the second half of this year distinctly better than the first. And as for the longer future, the powerful constructive force that is inherent in cheap money should not be overlooked. It is normal for there to be a time lag between the occurrence of cheap money and the beneficent trade results.

CLOUDS SOON TO PASS

As for the near term future several clouds which have been overhanging the market will soon be dissipated. The tariff bill which has been heightening business indecision, will soon be out of the way.

Moreover, the proposed reparation financing for which the financial world has been waiting will be accomplished perhaps within the next fortnight. It has been assumed influential investment bankers desired to keep the stock market quiet until this international loan was floated. Furthermore the country is entering the season where impetus will be given to business by the far-reaching road building and other public works program of state and federal governments.

URGES BALANCED 'DIET'

Under the circumstances, what is the investor with surplus funds to do? With the immediate profits outlook uncertain, the investor should have a new respect for high grade bonds, which represent a contract to pay interest. And yet he need not go to extremes in crowding his portfolio with bonds.

Irrespective of the immediate short term outlook, current depressed stock prices give the real investor an opportunity to acquire a diversified list of the best grade of common stocks for long term investment. The true investor should seek a balanced investment diet, with some cash, short and long term bonds, preferred stocks and common shares. It is to be assumed that even before buying securities the investor has hedged against the uncertainties of life by acquiring in adequate amounts life and non-cancelable accident and health insurance policies.

SIGNS OF STABILIZING

The barometer of low pressure in world business has been the universal decline of raw material prices. There is some indication that an approach to stabilization is being made. The apparent excess supplies are exaggerated by the reluctance on the part of buyers to pile up inventories.

Once confidence in business has been more fully restored, these apparent surplus supplies of some commodities at least will speedily disappear. Cheap money and the prospects of better business will help to stabilize commodity prices.

Meantime, the world-wide decline in prices has worked a hardship on debtors all over the world, including not only Germany, the reparation debtor, but also the various governments in debt to the American Treasury and to American investors. For these debts are in gold, and the fall in prices means that the real value or purchasing power of gold has risen sharply.

INFLATION STEPS LIKELY

This price situation and the value of gold have enormous potential political ramifications. They are likely once more to make the world flirt with inflationary experiments. The scene is being laid again for a new style William Jennings Bryan, who will seek to liberate the world from the cross of gold.

As a matter of fact, inflation is a dangerous drug, but deflation, such as we have been experiencing, is equally harmful. The central bankers of the world, who will have a new rallying ground at the new bank for international settlements, have a fine opportunity to rationalize gold, and to make it more amenable to human needs.

O. H. Cheney, vice president of the Irving Trust Company, wrote an article during the bull market entitled "It Aint Gonna' Rain No More," satirizing the notion that the business cycle had been adjourned. Mr. Cheney ought to write another article entitled "The Sun Won't Shine Any More," satirizing the current ridiculous notion that prosperity has disappeared permanently.

Dullness of Market Action Gives Little Promise Of Quick Profits

Unless the investor has in mind the purchasing of high grade stocks for investment or for long pull speculation, there is little to be gained by entering the market at this time. The absence of a good portion of the professional trading fraternity, together with the apathy of investors and speculators generally, is now reflected in the dullest and narrowest markets in more than two years. Daily transactions, which are now only about 50 per cent as large as at the same time last year, revolve around a comparatively small number of the industrial and specialty favorites. Railroad stocks are selling on the average at a point above the low of the year and only 10 points above the November panic level and new lows are being recorded every day in certain sections of the market.

Bradstreet's weekly review of business conditions reveals a further quieting down in the iron and steel, automobile, lumber, building construction, textile and other important lines. Standard statistics points out that the peak of the spring expansion in steel consumption has already passed, with little to indicate other than the usual sagging tendency between now and late summer. Steel prices have declined in recent weeks, but the 50-cent recovery in steel scrap is taken by some as an indication of the turning of the watchword in the stock market, with amusement, electrical manufacturing and utility stocks in the favorite roles.

With the food issues comprising one of the few groups of stocks whose earnings prospects for 1930 are on the ascendancy, General Foods is believed to hold out the most attractive potentialities for long term appreciation. The company has obtained control of the Birdseye quick freezing process, which is expected to prove a valuable adjunct to future profit showing. Under this process fresh food is packaged and subjected to low temperatures in such a manner as to preserve its freshness and flavor during the period of distribution. An indication of the possibilities of this improvement can be realized by the statement that the potential field represents about 75 per cent of the entire food products market. At present levels the stock provides a return of more than 5 per cent.

Although a somewhat greater risk attaches to American and Foreign Power than to the average of the leading public utility shares, more than one well-informed quarter has pointed out the attractive outlook that the stock possesses. The company has made outstanding expansion its field of operations with gross revenues in 1929 showing an increase of 111 per cent over the preceding year, with the comparative results in net per share resulting in $4 last year, against $1.22 in 1928. Another favorable development has been the drastic decline in Chinese currency, which will result in a saving of about $18,000,000 for the American and Foreign Power in the cost of acquiring one of the Chinese utility organizations.

The buoyant action of Warner Bros. stock in recent sessions has apparently signified that its sponsors are prepared to again attempt to place their favorite in the market spotlight, once the present unsettlement has been cleared. Earnings for the six months period ending March 31, were equivalent to $3.6 per share, and estimates for the full year are $7. With present valuations less than nine times earnings, the stock appears to possess more than average attractiveness for the long pull.

That the tariff is a market factor is the growing belief in the financial district. While it has been realized that this subject of legislation had a tendency to hold back participation in the market and also has been a brake on business recovery, the comment is becoming more general around Wall street. A popular view is that the tariff question must be settled one way or the other before important industries plan manufacturing and selling schedules for later in the year. At the same time, it is believed the stock market also is waiting for a definite settlement of this important issue.

HOW'S BUSINESS? ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

Check Payments Show Business is Good

Payments by check in 140 cities during the first four months of 1930 are compared with the same periods of the past nine years. These figures give a truer picture of business conditions than clearings as many checks do not go through clearing houses. New York figures are excluded because a large amount of its check payments are for stock transactions. Source: Federal Reserve Board.

Chart by FRELING FOSTER

Check payments, as other business figures, should be compared with several past years, and not only the last one, especially when it was as abnormal as 1929. However, allowing for the heavy stock trading of last year, 1930 compares very favorably with 1929 in this chart.

New Process to Change Oil Industry

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WIDESPREAD CHANGES in the oil refining industry may take place within the next decade if the commercial results of new processes developed by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey come up to expectations.

The company recently announced that it would be willing to grant licenses for the use of its patents in this country. Several oil companies have already signified their intentions of applying for permission to use the process on a royalty basis. The rights for the use of the patents outside of the United States are held by the Standard I. G. Company in which Standard Oil of New Jersey has a majority interest. The balance of the stock in the company is held by I. G. Farbenindustrie of Germany.

Complete Conversion

THE SURPRISING FEATURE of the process, which is known as hydrogenation, is the fact that coal, shale oil, coal tar or crude petroleum can be converted into gasoline and other high-grade products with practically a yield of 100 per cent.

That is, a barrel of crude oil can be made into a barrel of the higher priced products of the oil industry. This is a distinct advance over the present refining operations in which there is always a large share of residue material which can only be sold at a low price. The oil industry of the future, instead of selling fuel oil for use in steam plants, will probably convert almost its entire output into more valuable products.

Uses Hydrogen

UNDER THE OLD PROCESSES of treating petroleum and coal, distillation is used. The materials are heated and the high volatile substances, which are the valuable products, are driven off leaving the low volatile materials. In the petroleum industry the yield of gasoline is increased by "cracking" which changes the composition of some of the low volatile materials.

The new method being developed by Standard Oil of New Jersey is a chemical rather than a distillation process. The material to be treated is heated under high pressure in a container filled with hydrogen. The hydrogen becomes chemically united with the low volatile substances, changing them into gasoline or other valuable products.

Developed in Germany

HYDROGENATION WAS FIRST developed in Germany and is now used in plants which are obtaining petroleum products from coal. The process was first described in this country by the inventor, Dr. Friederich Bergius, at the international conference on bituminous coal at the Carnegie Institute of Technology four years ago.

Nearly a year later the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey made arrangements for the use of the patents with the German company. While the treatment of coal is commercially feasible in Europe, where petroleum is expensive, the process is not particularly attractive when used with coal in this country due to the cheapness of natural petroleum.

Standard of New Jersey carried on a series of experiments with the treatment of petroleum itself. The results have exceeded the original German discoveries and have developed a process which is commercially adaptable to conditions here. Three plants are now being built to use the process here. Aside from indicating far reaching changes in the petroleum industry, the process removes the possibility of the world ever suffering from a gasoline shortage due to the exhaustion of petroleum resources.

GENERAL TANK CAR WIDENS PROGRAM

Company Plans Expansion Of European Operations; Opportunities in Italy

NEW YORK, June 9.—(AP) General American Tank Car Corporation is considering an expansion program for its European operations. The plan contemplates the building up of a large system for affording tank and refrigerator car transportation to the petroleum, wine, olive oil and fruit and vegetable industries of Europe.

The expansion program contemplates operation of an extensive tank car system for the Russian and Rumanian oil industries in the event that the petroleum and political situation in those countries clears up and the company is also considering the question of applying tank car transportation to the movement of the wine and olive crops of France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium and Spain.

OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

Italy is developing her fruit and vegetable industry on an extensive scale and there is a wide field for the application of the refrigerator car transportation for moving these products to the markets of central and northern Europe.

The outlook for tank and refrigerator car transportation to Europe is extremely favorable. It is thought that an extensive system can be built up on the Continent.

OFFICIALS ABROAD

Lester N. Selig, a director of General American Tank Car Corporation and assistant to the president conferred here with Mr. Mayer prior to sailing on the Ile de France to join Max Epstein, chairman of the board who has been in Europe for some time inspecting the company's foreign subsidiaries and investigating potential markets for tank and refrigerator car service. Mr. Epstein and Mr. Selig are to return to the United States early next month at which time it is believed that definite plans for developing the company's European organization will be announced.

BROWN SHOE CO. PRODUCTION EXPANDS

Additional Plant Will Have Capacity of 5,000 Pairs A Day; Profits Increase

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—Current production of Brown Shoe Company and subsidiaries is around 50,000 pairs of shoes a day, with indications that this rate not only will be sustained, but increased as the fall months approach. Total producing capacity of the company is approximately 19,000 pairs a day.

The new factory at Sullivan, Ill., which has been under construction for some time, has been placed in operation and will manufacture a staple line of women's medium priced shoes. This new unit will have a maximum output of about 1,000 pairs a day, and employ approximately 600 people. For the present however, only 100 will be engaged, additions being made as demand increases.

HUGE OUTPUT

The need for expansion became evident last year when the company sold 15,124,545 pairs of shoes representing 95 per cent of the annual manufacturing capacity of its factories.

Net profit for the first half of fiscal year ended April 30 was $598,271 after charges, interest, depreciation and federal taxes, equivalent after allowing for 7 per cent preferred dividends to $1.83 a share on 252,000 no-par shares of common stock outstanding. This compared with $580,668, or $1.65 a share in corresponding period of previous year.

RAW MATERIALS DOWN

Net sales were $14,045,976, against $15,830,886 in first half of last year.

Current assets totaled $14,535,437 and current liabilities $2,696,315 a ratio of 5 to 1. Inventories of finished merchandise and raw materials were slightly changed at $6,830,472 on April 30, against $6,782,033 last year. When inventories were taken this year however prices of raw hides and finished leather and shoes, were based on cost or market, whichever was lower. Both hides and finished product are at a lower level now than they have been for some time.

BETTER STEEL TRADE SEEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 9.—With Mahoning Valley Steel Company executives reporting "better business in sight," production schedules for the week indicate maintenance of a 65 per cent operating rate. Some gains in steel pipe production are offset by losses in flat-rolled materials.

Newton Steel manufacturing full finished sheets principally for the automobile trade, declines 5 per cent to a 60 per cent rate. Sharon Steel Hoop on the other hand, operates close to 100 per cent, but its rolling mill does not start until Tuesday afternoon.

The large producers, such as Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Carnegie Steel and Republic Steel are averaging 65 per cent. Truscon Steel has stepped up production to 95 per cent and has enough unfilled orders to maintain this rate some time.

Republic Steel Corporation has improvements and enlargements under way at Youngstown and Warren involving more than $1,000,000 outlay, including additional furnace capacity to provide hot metal, enlarged strip mill capacity and expansion in steel pipe output which will add 360,000 tons annually to its production.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Fluctuate — Local Market Is Quiet

STOCK MARKET AGAIN SHOWS HEAVINESS

More Than Two Score Shares Sink to New 1930 Lows; Selling Orderly and Quiet

NEW YORK, June 9 — (AP.)—It was blue Monday in Wall street today, but somewhat less blue than expected in the more pessimistic quarters after the local orgy of Saturday. Stocks again developed leaden heaviness and more than two score touched new lows for the year. The selling was for the most part orderly and quiet and the ticker kept fairly well abreast of the market. Individual shares generally declined 1 to 3 points, with wider breaks appearing here and there.

The week-end trade reports gave no indication of a change in the trend of business and traders generally appear content to let the market drift. The sharp decline on Saturday caused considerable liquidation of weakened marginal accounts but owing to the extremely limited public participation in the market of late no frenzy of forced liquidation developed.

ISSUE HELD OVER

It is now understood that the reparations bond issue will be held over until next week and it is regarded as unlikely that powerful banking interests would stand aside and permit the market to go into a severe slump while this issue is pending. At the same time, there appears little inclination to support the market so long as the selling does not get out of hand. The meagre business news contained reports of further curtailment of steel mill operations at Chicago and rumors of further price shading. Consolidated Cigar cut its annual dividend rate from $7 to $5. Call and time money continued plentiful.

Legal action against a group charged with manipulating the recent collapse of Manhattan Electrical Supply appeared to have inspired some caution in the bear camp. There was little inclination to cover short commitments, however, and such buying as appeared was on the scale down. Slight rallying tendencies appeared at times but were short lived.

STEEL DIPS

U. S. Steel dipped a fraction below 164 to another new low for the year, but was quickly supported. Other shares reaching new 1930 low ground included International Nickel, Pullman, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Baltimore and Ohio, Erie, Wabash, Gulf States Steel, Hudson and Studebaker.

A few shares lost 4 points or more, including American and Foreign Power, Lehman Corporation and Eastman Kodak. Shares losing 2 to 3 included American Water Works, American Power and Light, North American, Atchison, Loews, Johns Manville, Radio Keith, Fox and Warner Brothers. Amusements were sold in considerable volume, bears making capital of reports of a letup in theaters attendance during May, although such a development would be largely seasonal in character. Rails and utilities were notably weak.

WALL STREET HEARS

That Niagara Hudson will soon be transferred from the curb to the Stock Exchange.

That some important traders look for a technical rally in the stock market this week.

That General Railway Signal management views coming months with considerable optimism, as there is considerable new business in sight.

That Glidden Corporation's profit margin has widened with the decline in commodity prices.

That important banking interests are content to let the stock market shift for itself, perceiving flotation of the reparations loan, barring any serious decline which might unsettle the financial community enough to interfere with the loan.

GMO Units Curtail Working Schedules

No Date Set for Hearing Steel Merger Data

NEW YORK, June 9 — Attorneys subpoenaed today that no date had been decided on for further examination of witnesses in deposition for the impending trial in Ohio brought to finally a merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

Depositions were taken last week from Charles M. Schwab and Eugene Grace, chairman and president of Bethlehem, and G. M. P. Murphy, New York broker.

Minority stockholders of Youngstown are trying to prevent the merger on the ground that it was illegally arranged and that many stockholders would not have voted in favor of it if the fact had not been kept from them that Grace and others received million dollar salaries. During his examination Grace refused to tell the amount of his salary.

No 'Sweet' in Childless Homes, Divorce Judge Says

NEW YORK, June 9—(INS.)—The "sweet" has been taken from "Home, Sweet Home." It doesn't mean a thing any more, due to childless marriages and other things.

After studying the facts in 54 undefended divorce cases tried before him in one day, Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Lewis reached this conclusion today. He said:

"A home used to be the location of our birth, the place where we entertained our friends and where we held all our family functions.

"Today, we are born in hospitals, we entertain in our clubs, we eat in restaurants, we entertain our visiting friends in cabarets, and we are buried from funeral parlors."

The cure for it all would be more children and fewer divorces, according to the learned judge, who added:

"Presence of children attracts the husband to his home and keeps the mothers from the gossiping neighbors and bridge parties. Absence of children promotes discord and their presence makes harmony.

"I know of scores of cases where the husband remains home merely for the sake of his love for the children. If such men did not have children, they would leave their wives and either get or give a divorce."

The modern woman is anxious to get rid of her husband that she is even willing to forego alimony and earn her own livelihood, Justice Lewis said he concluded from studying nine divorce cases out of ten.

"She is perfectly willing to work out her own financial salvation as long as she gets rid of him, and then, inevitably, she will marry somebody else in a desperate attempt to find happiness."

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Beautiful home, Ned," I said to my prosperous lawyer brother, whom I had not seen in years.

He had met me at the station and we were driving through the grounds to the house I had praised.

"Ivan Gardner designed it.

"The one who knew lived in a dump over by the freight yard?

"Yes.

My brother's wife came out to greet me. So we said no more about Gardner then but at teatime on the south terrace the conversation swung around to him again.

My brother had remained in our native suburb while I had gone West for adventure and stumbled into a fortune by way of some oil lands I had been holding in the belief that they would double in value as house lots. For the first time I could afford travel and leisure.

On a handsome estate adjoining my brother's beautiful home was an equally attractive house done after the modern manner of Norman architecture.

When I spoke of it my brother was reminded of our interrupted talk about Ivan Gardner.

"Doesn't look much like the old shack over by the freight yards does it?"

"Do you mean that Ivan Gardner lives there?"

"He does. He designed it and he owns it. Ivan has done very well for himself. He has immense offices in the city, specializes in dwellings although he had designed a number of skyscrapers.

We recalled our public school days in this suburb when Ivan Gardner was one of the shabby poor boys of the town. Even then he was forever making drawings and sketches. My brother told me how Gardner had studied nights, worked for a pittance as office boy for some noted architect and finally found himself able to open his own modest little office.

The Story

"I do not talk about my legal business," my brother said, "but since it's to my brother and we both knew Gardner when he was a ragged nobody, I'll tell you about him.

Without attempting to quote my brother's rather academic style, I will tell the story about Ivan Gardner as I recall it now.

Gardner attained a fair amount of prosperity after he opened his office and launched out as a full-fledged architect. He decided that he ought to marry. There were a number of attractive young ladies who were rather fond of him, for he had always been a good looking chap, in a manly way that made him popular.

Hattie Bacon and Florence Milton were two of the "local girls I remembered. Since Gardner's story concerns both of them it became doubly interesting to me.

Hattie Bacon had a fair amount of good looks and more than a fair amount of worldly goods. She had inherited the wealth. She also had a certain amount of histrionic ability, it seems, since she pretended to Gardner to be one of those sweet little clinging vine type of girls.

Florence Milton had education, refinement, vivacity and more than one woman's fair amount of good looks, but she had no fortune. She was an outdoor sort of girl, capable, athletic and far from being the clinging vine type.

Gardner made the mistake of marrying Hattie.

He doubtless took into consideration the fact of Hattie's fortune, although there was no doubt that her clinging-vine stuff had won him over. Many men are flattered by that sort of thing, it makes them feel like great, strong, dependable men and protectors.

Florence Milton laughed gaily at their wedding and shouted hearty good wishes. In the seclusion of her home, however, she resorted to what was a rarity with her, a "good cry." Florence had loved Gardner as she loved no other man.

Gardner enjoyed the "perfect happiness" period of their honeymoon. He sensibly permitted his wife to pay for her own clothes, as he knew he could not afford to do that, but he steadfastly refused to let his wife finance him in opening an immense office, as she wanted to do. When she pleaded with him to give up his work and travel about with her, he also refused. He wasn't the sort to sponge on his wife.

Jealousy

Hattie's clinging-vine stuff soon wore off. She didn't cling so much, but she did make every effort to be the big boss of not only their home but of her husband's business.

Gardner discovered that she was easily made jealous—the sort who become jealous without the least real reason.

There was the time that the wealthy Widow Olmstead got Gardner to plan her new home. It was to be an immense place, and it meant a great deal more to Gardner just then than the goodly amount of money it would bring him, for Mrs. Olmstead was a social leader and planning her home would give him a better standing as an architect as well as to bring him more of her type of patrons.

Gardner's wife dropped into his office every time she was in the city and after she had found Mrs. Olmstead there on three occasions she had her first real quarrel. She knew better than to make a scene before Mrs. Olmstead, but at home the storm broke. She accused Gardner of being altogether too friendly with the rich and beautiful widow and she demanded that he refuse to go on with his work for her.

"I'll pay you 10 times what you will charge her," Hattie cried, "but for once I must insist that you never see her again."

Don't be a fool, my dear," was Gardner's reply.

Hattie Gardner had to make the best of it, but as time went on and her husband met other women as he always did in his business, his wife became more and more jealous.

Will anyone be home? Good. We'll make a day of it. Flo."

He hung up the receiver. For once Hattie Gardner didn't go into a spasm of insane jealousy. She was too shocked. She opened the front door softly, slammed it and came in with a forced smile.

Here was where she would wait her time and actually get the goods on her husband.

Gardner made no mention of the telephone call.

Finally his wife said: "I saw Flo Milton over at Peabody's this afternoon playing tennis."

She plays better than most men," Gardner answered.

That was all he said. His wife became more suspicious than ever now. She had given him an opening to speak of the telephone call and he had not mentioned it. To her this meant that he was guilty and that she had stumbled on to the fact that he was planning a secret affair with Flo Milton.

Finds Letter

She began searching his pockets for letters. Finally she found a brief note, evidently hastily scrawled in pencil. It read:

Dear Ivan: You were out when I phoned. Couldn't leave verbal message. Tuesday at noon: room 901. FLO.

The note was on a letterhead of Gardner's. His wife kept the note. It was a little more evidence for her to use when she finally let him know that she had found out about his perfidy.

Hattie Gardner intended to find out what hotel was meant. She took the next train into the city after her husband on the following Tuesday. She managed to hang about where she could watch the entrance to the building where her husband had his offices. She would trail him.

At noon he hadn't come out. At one o'clock she went to his office and was told that he had gone to Philadelphia.

Back home went Mrs. Gardner, then to the home of Florence Milton. Florence, by the way, lived with a married sister. Mrs. Gardner was told that Florence was visiting friends in Morristown.

Mrs. Gardner wanted to scream out that it was a lie, that Flo Milton was at some Philadelphia hotel in room 901 with her husband. But Hattie Gardner had a great amount of a certain sort of pride. She didn't want it known in her home town that she had failed to hold her husband or that any woman on earth could win her husband away from her.

She got a wire that afternoon from her husband telling her that he was detained in Philadelphia on business and would return the next day.

This was the last straw. Hattie Gardner got busy. She packed a trunk and by midnight she was speeding West. When Gardner got back to his office the next day he found a letter his wife had mailed in the city the night before. It was brief and amazing. She wrote:

"Have proof at last of how despicable you are. Know all about your affairs with Flo Milton, have known it for weeks, even know that you were in room 901 with her last night. I have too much pride to name her. I am on my way to Reno for a divorce."

Flo Milton Calls

Gardner stared at the note. His amazement changed. He suddenly laughed. His secretary hadn't heard him laugh like that for a year, at least.

When Ivan Gardner got home Florence Milton was sitting in her car in front of his house. She had a lot to say to him.

"You are having an affair with some girl named Flo, Ivan, and your silly wife thinks I am the Flo," she said.

She showed him a letter his wife had mailed to her. It was not the sort one could print and poor Florence gritted her teeth and flushed rosy red as she handed it to him.

"Flo," said Ivan, "you know Flo Zellnar. We went to school with him—remember how we always made fun of him because his name was Florenz?"

Florence nodded but said nothing.

"Flo has had business troubles and lost his little hardware store. He has been getting commissions from various concerns for bringing in contracts. He has just landed a wonderful thing for me—to plan a million-dollar estate for young Van Courdant. Flo's commission from me will be five thousand, you can imagine what I'll make. He and I went to Philly yesterday and met Van Courdant's wife."

"Oh!" said Florence Milton, and then, "Oh, Ivan, we must wire the facts to poor Hattie."

"We shall do nothing of the sort, Florence. We shall wait until she gets the divorce and then I shall marry you—as I should have done in the first place."

"I am going to kiss you, Ivan Gardner," Flo said, slowly, "Right or wrong, I am going to give you one kiss now—and after we're married—plenty!"

Above is a sample of the work I done in arranging the furniture for one of the wealthiest and most artistic families in our fast growing city. I cannot reveal the name as it would be violating a confidence which to me is worth more than the dough I would get by thus blowing my own horn. But I do say with all the force at my command (and I am not a weak woman) that Aunt Bella gets personality, charm and eye-appeal into bedrooms. If you have any interior decorating in mind, try to meet Aunt Bella somewheres and let's talk it over.. What do you say?

A Buddhist Monk's Funeral

Strange Are Men's Varying Ideas of Death.

CURIOUS FUNERAL ORNAMENTS

The Buddhists of Burma, Thibet and elsewhere take the lives and the deaths of their monks most seriously. Those monks represent Buddha on earth, hold the keys to the Buddhist's fate here and hereafter, they are revered while they live, treated with great consideration when they die.

The picture above shows one of the funerary cars used at the cremation of a Buddhist monk. The Burman gentlemen below indicate the gigantic size of the curious creatures built up of light material on the funeral car.

Just what they MEAN is not told. A lady, strangely dressed, appears to be treating her gentleman in complimentary fashion.

Perhaps the lady is an angel from far away, come to escort the dead Buddhist to his reward.

However that may be, to have such an ornament at your funeral is considered a great honor in Burma, one reserved for important personages, including Buddhist monks.

The structure in the background shows a tall canopy, under which the body of the dead monk is cremated. The canopy is burned with him. The ashes are gathered together and buried near a Buddhist temple.

Sometimes, you are told, the ashes of the monk are piously collected, pounded to fine dust, mixed into a sort of cement, and modeled into an image of the Buddha, sitting cross legged, in deep contemplation.

That idea never seems to have occurred to our part of the world. You never heard of a Democrat, cremated, having his bones pounded to paste and made into a model of the head of Thomas Jefferson, or a Republican doing the same for Abraham Lincoln.

Strange are men's ideas of death.

We like, usually, an elaborate funeral, with as many mourners as possible. We like a fine grave, preferably on a hill, with a good view, although you see nothing from the grave.

We like expensive coffins and monuments.

Our leading gunmen even like coffins of solid silver, and five or ten thousand dollars' worth of flowers, to grace the occasion, when they are "bumped off."

Many a woman has skimped and saved all her life that she might have a fine funeral, arranging to spend the money at a time when she could neither see nor enjoy the spending. Probably she enjoyed thinking about it.

Whatever makes us happy is good for us.

Some will tell you, cold-bloodedly, that the human body is worth, as far as its actual materials are concerned, considerably less than a dollar.

Men spend a good deal of their lives thinking about the final disposition of the few cents worth of corpse.

They think more about that, often, than they do about improving the mind and soul that live in the body.

Many go through life without thinking very much about what is going to happen to that life of the body when the body dies.

'Handicapped'

From Birth.

King George conferred a peerage recently on Henry Sanderson Furniss.

Peerages are not always awarded for merit. This was.

Lord Furniss earned the honor for his services to the cause of education. He is a former principal of Ruskin College, Oxford. He was labor candidate for Parliament from Oxford University in 1918. He is known as a scholar, an economist and a humanitarian.

But the interesting thing about him is that he has been BLIND FROM BIRTH.

He credits this blindness with giving him his marvelously retentive memory. He forgets nothing of importance that he reads or hears.

His parents could not have known, when he was a child, that blindness would help him to become a peer of the realm, entitled to wear ermine and to sit in the House of Lords.

The worst handicaps may turn out to be advantages, if one TURNS THEM to advantage.

Pay for Poets

One Suggestion.

America has 40,000 poets, most of them starving. This information is from Ralph Cheyney—one of the 40 000.

Mr. Cheyney suggests that poets form a union like plumbers, bricklayers and other workers, and, if necessary, strike for higher wages.

"No pay, no poetry," is the idea.

The union also would stand for the closed shop. Nobody could review a poem, for instance, unless he was a poet himself. And nobody would be permitted to teach poetry in college without having served his apprenticeship, and produced at least a sonnet.

That's all right with us, but the poets are taking a roundabout route to three square meals a day. The public would cheerfully support most of them—not to write, but to stop writing. It wouldn't be a charity. It would be a pleasure.

The Quake That Knows No Fences

Drawn by Nelson Harding

The ten years artificial drought
Has been a great mistake,
Resulting in a natural,
But unexpected, quake.

And yawning fissures, deep and wide,
Show how the land is split,
While party fences tumble down
Wherever they are hit.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Checker Champions

Wall street has throttled down to mere two million share days. Which might be called steady production if the suckers produce.

"Bugs" Baer because they have anything to sell. But because they want to lean on each other.

The tumult and shouting has evaporated with the pomp and glory. No more fighting and yelling. The brokers still go into huddles. Not

When a broker sees a stranger his face lights up so suddenly it explodes.

But when we explained that we were not there to offer our body to medical and financial research the brokers went sadly back to their checker games.

The world's quickest and deadliest abattoir is in a tough state when the boys have to play checkers. They might as well be kicking clover in Vermont.

Still, it's exciting. Needless to say, the checkers are loaded.

Finance has lathered itself into a soapy moratorium. And when the fish ain't biting the fishermen bite themselves.

Visualize the works with a load of J. P. Morgan calling up the Rockefeller Foundation and asking, "What's new today?"

John D. answers, "Nothing but the morning biscuits. And they're stale."

"Well," says J. P., "how about a big merger of whiskers and elbows? Let's pool our checkers and corner the cracker barrel in the grocery store."

And while the rest of the world is waiting with palpitating halitosis, the two titanic figures of international debit are pushing red and black buttons at each other.

It's sadder and gloomier than rain on a wagon picnic. Once there was really a wall around Wall street.

The idea was to keep the Indians out. Now, the brokers would welcome Indians, Eskimos, Hottentotters, Dunkers, Skeduxxes and European imposters.

Stop and shed a tear for the glory that once was rum. Only two million shares handled a day and every broker trying to outfumble the other bird.

Ten years ago two million shares would have been considered a big day. And one headache would have been considered a big night.

Choke back a sob for the manipulator who hops into the king row and forces the loser to buy cigars for the haunted house.

CELESTIAL MOTIONS

By Archibald Henderson

How many of us, as we walk out of doors and look up at the sun, take thought of the singular state of affairs of the universe? The enormous strides made by astronomy in modern times is illustrated by our changed attitude towards the sun. Believe it or not!—but little more than a century ago a distinguished astronomer, William Herschal, actually believed it possible that the sun might be a habitable planet! Today we know that the sun's surface temperature is 6,000 degrees centigrade; and that the temperature in its interior rises to as much as 70,000,000 degrees centigrade!

How long would it take to reach the sun? First, consider the time it would take a lightray to traverse the 93,000,000 miles, which is the distance from the earth to the sun. Light travels roughly at the rate of 186,000 miles in a single second. Consequently, a light ray would take just 500 seconds to travel from the earth to the sun. The speed of the light ray may be judged by the fact that it could travel between seven and eight times around the earth in a single second.

Let us fire off a cannon ball toward the sun and suppose it never loses its initial velocity. In that case it would take something like nine years to reach the sun. How long would it take the report of the shot to reach the sun? Sound travels much more slowly than the cannon ball itself. In fact, it would take the sound of the report something like 14 years to reach the sun. Suppose a projectile were fired off with the speed of an ordinary express train and were to retain that speed throughout the journey. Traveling more than 600 miles per day, it would take the projectile about 400 years to make the journey to the sun. As Thomas put it, in Heaven and Earth! We set out today, a party of curious travelers, and our great-great-great-great - great - great - great - great - great - great-grandchildren alight from the train!

It is quite impossible for anyone, even the greatest astronomer, to have any definite idea of such a great distance as 93,000,000 miles. But we might understand vast relative quantities if we reduced them to the small scale distances to which we are accustomed. Suppose we construct a small model in which all the distances were so reduced that one meter would represent 1,000,000 kilometers in space.

In that case the sun is a ball 54 inches in diameter; the earth, as large as a hazel-nut, revolves about it at a distance of 160 yards. While it makes one revolution round the sun, the sun itself has moved 680 yards obliquely to the plane of the earth's orbit. We thus obtain a corkscrew line, and the ratio of the diameter of the spiral to its length, measured on the slant, is as 30 to 23.

Our earth rotates upon an axis which is inclined at an angle of 66½ degrees to the plane of the earth's orbit. Moreover, the sun is hastening through space at the rate of about 12 miles per hour in the direction of the constellation Hercules, famed for its globular cluster of stars. Hercules does not stand still, so there is little or no chance of our ever reaching it. But even if it did stop and wait for us, it would be a long while—400,000 years—before we got there. The Earth in a single year moves through space towards the stars in Hercules a distance of about 393,000,000 miles.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

He won't help wash the dishes.

No, don't laugh. Jean's story isn't a joke. It's a serious problem—infinitely more important to the average young couple than tariffs or naval pacts. Listen—and get your answers ready.

Jean and Jack have been married a year. They both work. Have to, or they can't afford marriage. They faced that necessity when they were engaged and made what Jean calls "a regular business proposition." She was to keep her job until they "got a good start." She was also to cook the meals, but he was to "go halves" on all the rest of the housework.

For the first two months everything was lovely. Then Jack's enthusiasm about housework began to wear off. He was still a devoted lover and "a good Christian," according to Jean. But, come dishwashing time, Jack drifted out of the picture. Settled himself in the old easy chair and hid his face in the paper. Of course he'd lend a hand—by request. But requests rejected too often turn to nagging. And Jean doesn't like to nag. Besides, she is getting more and more chokey with resentment.

Isn't she just as tired as he? She is! Sometimes more. And doesn't she work as many hours as he does, to help get ahead? She does. And there's another trouble. In spite of her doing double shift, they're not getting ahead. For though Jack only earns half the money, he insists on managing it all. And managing, with Jack, means spending. They haven't a cent saved. But how can she take the managing from him? "It would make him feel so terrible, because he's a man—and men have always managed the money. And I love him too much to hurt him—"

These are the questions Jean wonders wearily over her dish pan. And the world wonders with her. For Jean isn't just one tired little wife. She's a sociological problem. What's your answer to that problem?

"SHE SHOULDN'T WORK."

But how are youngsters like Jean and Jack to marry if they don't both work? And what's the world going to do if they don't marry?

"DOUBLE-SHIFT IS BAD FOR HER HEALTH AND ENDANGERS FUTURE BABIES."

Of course it is—and does. Jean knows that as well as you or I. But unless she does endanger her health she can't have a man or a home or babies at all—and what sort of an alternative is that for a normal girl?

"MEN SHOULDN'T DO WOMAN WORK?"

Granted. But when women do man work—and men accept that service—what then? Why's it any worse for Jack to help with the dishes than it is for Jean to help with the rent?

"THIS SORT OF THING IS DESTROYING THE PROPER RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE SEXES. MEN DON'T RESPECT WOMEN WHEN THEY WORK IN THE SAME OFFICES WITH THEM. IT KILLS CHIVALRY. WOMEN WILL LOSE MEN IF THEY CONTINUE TO WORK."

And they'll never get them if they DON'T continue to work—so what's a girl to do in that dilemma? What's YOUR answer?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

One Who Understands

He has left youth behind him, yet he knows
How brimmed with loveliness the old world gleams
To clear young eyes, and how life's current flows
At flood to bear Elysian hopes and dreams.

Nor has he tasted yet the flat, stale brew
That age must drink; but strangely he can feel
How dark the day that brings no interest new,
How closer, deeper night's sure shadows steal.

Though pang of poverty, vast riches' load,
Have never touched his days, he knows them all;
And so he is a brother on the road,
Who shares in every fate that may befall.

Of greater worth than glory, wealth or lands
Is this, the gift of one who understands.

Text For Today Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.—I Samuel xv:22.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

From time to time one of the creeping cells can be seen to stop and to withdraw its temporary limbs of out-thrust protoplasm until it is a rounded blob. It is about to divide. Soon preparatory changes are evident in its interior.

The nucleus has hitherto been a clear globe with one or more slowly stirring nucleoli inside it, but now the nucleoli disappear and at the same time a swarm of faint grey granules loom into view. The granules come together to form a mass of thin threads, some longer, some shorter.

H. G. Wells.

These begin to twist and wriggle, more and more actively, until the whole thread-mass looks, in Dr. Strangeway's words, "like eels in a box." Then the writhing slows again and then threads shorten and thicken until they become stubby rods.

These bodies, at first writhing threads and then stubby rods, are called chromosomes; they play vitally important parts in our lives.

Meanwhile, the boundary of the nucleus has disappeared, so that its contents mingle with the cytoplasm; and two centers of activity have appeared at either end of the cell, from which dim gray fibres spread out like the lines of force between two magnets.

The star-shaped ends of this fibrous figure are called the asters, the central part the spindle, from its shape; and it is across the spindle's equator that the chromosomes now take up their posts. To reach this stage takes about eight minutes from the first appearance of granules in the nucleus.

The changes that we have just described have been preparatory to the actual division, which now begins to take place.

First each chromosome can be seen to tear along its length, and the two halves to be pulled apart toward the two ends of the spindle; in another five or ten minutes the halves have been completely separated into two groups at the two ends of the cell.

Meanwhile, the cell has elongated, and now begins to show a strange activity. All over its surface little bubble-like outgrowths are thrust forth and after a few seconds drawn in again, so that the observer is reminded of boiling pitch. Cinema films that are now available and which are run at a much faster pace than that taken by the actual process show that the cell seems to be boiling violently.

This goes on more and more actively for about six minutes. Then abruptly a waist appears, dividing this boiling cell into two halves. They move straight away from each other, as if mutually repulsive, until they tear the final connecting strand; then, having won their freedom, they calm down and begin wandering about in the usual way.

Meanwhile, round the chromosome-bunch in each cell a clear zone forms, and a membrane round this; the chromosomes grow hazy, they swell and become transparent, and so an ordinary resting nucleus is produced.

The actual process of mitosis, as this type of cell-division is styled (from the Greek for thread, with reference to the thready chromosomes) takes about half an hour, and the reconstruction of the nucleus one to two hours more.

If the cells are killed and stained, further details are revealed. The chromosomes are seen to differ from each other in shape and form, their longitudinal splitting is more clearly visible, and two little dots are revealed at the center of each set of radiating fibers.

These dots are the centrebodies of centrosomes. It is their activity which in a few minutes conjures up the spindle and its star-shaped anchoring ends, by means of which the split half-chromosomes are guided to their destinations.

What can be the meaning of these strange maneuvers, this "paroxysm of activity," as Strangeways calls it?

It cannot be for nothing that the nucleus abandons its ordinary task of regulating the cell's chemistry, dissolves its own boundaries, and generates this cohort of living chromosome-threads; not for nothing that these threads are divided along their narrow length, and that the centrosomes fill the cell with a tackle of microscopic ropes along which the half-chromosomes are transported.

The most striking feature of the process is the careful bisection of the chromosomes.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 9.—Diary of a modern Pepys: A letter from Bluch Landorf, former Hippodrome clown, and like all epistles from mimes couched in frustration. And came an upholsterer to fix my desk who told me Victor Hugo wrote "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" entirely by hand.

In the afternoon with my wife in a gasoline landau to Coney Island to stroll among show barkers, whose enthusiasm fascinates, and after idling on the beach back through Prospect Park which is as restful to me as any spot in the city and more beautiful than Central Park.

Dined at a Rumanian restaurant on Essex street and had green noodles cooked in spinach and a heavily spiced haunch of veal that made me perspire like a stevedore. And on Eldridge street there had been a tenement murder and the crowd was for all the world like that in "Street Scene." So home to bed.

Will C. Hogg has been absent so long at the seaside resorts in France his friends—and who has more?—refer to him as Old Man Riviera.

Speaking of the Riviera, the most talked about personality along the Promenade des Anglais in Nice is the American—Frank Jay Gould. He has plunged heavily for the purchase of hotels, casinos and golf links in France. Among his hotels is the Majestic at Nice and his casinos include the Big Casino at Nice and the Little Casino at Juan-les-Pins. Several chocolate factories have been acquired and merged also. Mr. Gould quit America for France in 1913, but has not altogether gone native. His favorite author is Chic Sale.

And a gentleman who writes of the languorous life along the Riviera mentions en passant: Chambertin '65 at the Tour d'Argent; the Chateau d'Yquem '74 at Voisin's; Romanee Conti '86 at Laperouse; Richebourg '19 at Drouant's; Armagnac '89 at La Petite Chaise; Marc '58 at Foyot's; Reisling '06 at the Cigogne; Duminy '19 at Ciro's; the Pilsener at Le Select, the Muenchener at the Brasserie Universalle and the Bock at La Grande Chaumiere. Yet I am one of the venerable roues who would at the moment pass them all up for a glace peche and a chair at a marble-topped table on the terasse of the Cafe de la Paix, glancing at a copy of the Gallipolis (O.) Weekly Tribune, propped up against a blue seltzer bottle as Paris saunters by.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Because you have little money you may think you are not wanted in certain circles in which you would like to move.

Therefore you have never made it apparent that you would be willing and glad to associate with and reciprocate in a social way.

You have let your inferiority complex govern you and have become dissatisfied and displeased all around.

Of course, there are always certain circles in which you would not be welcome if not provided with plenty of money.

But where financial backing is the most important requirement to any clique or crowd, you will find the association is not worth what it costs.

People whose friendship is worth having and who can be of help or benefit to you, look for something besides money holdings when they choose friends.

The circle in which you must buy or pay your way is not worth it.

Your standing in that circle depends upon your keeping your money.

If you have real value in your own makeup you will find worthwhile friends.

These worthwhile persons are mentally wealthy.

They appreciate and welcome a kindred spirit regardless of money backing.

Their ideals are high and they choose their friends because of their real worth.
